Seek Fugitive In Fire Slaying

Harry Seigel Wanted in Bayonne for Stealing Money From A Servant Might Have Information Concerning Slayer of Miss Brown.

New York, Mar. 1 (AP).—Police announced today that they were searching for Harry Seigel, wanted in Bayonne, N. J., for stealing money from a servant, for questioning in connection with the fire slaying of Miss Margaret Brown, New York governess.

The police said that Seigel, who is 32 years old, was being sought by the authorities in both New York and New Jersey. He is listed as a fugitive from justice from Bayonne.

Miss Brown's flame-wrapped body was found behind a hotdog stand on the Bernardsville-Morristown road in New Jersey a week ago last Monday night. An anonymous letter to police purporting to come from the slayer two days after the killing said that Miss Brown had been knocked unconscious when she resisted her companion's advances and had then been soaked in gasoline from his automobile and set fire.

Seigel was arrested here as a fugitive on December 15, but jumped his bail bond of $2,500. Police said he was of good appearance, well-dressed and frequently posed as a doctor.

Examination of Seigel's record at the time of his arrest here showed that he had no previous criminal record. His address at that time was given as 840 Waverly Place, Utica, N. Y.

Since the killing police have been able to learn but little of Miss Brown's friendships. Another governess who knew her, however, did tell that Miss Brown used to meet a man in Central Park who she said was a doctor. Police did not say today whether they believed Seigel to be implicated in the killing or whether they merely thought that he might have some information which might serve as a clue to help them find the slayer.

Whereabouts Unknown to Brother.

Utica, N. Y., March 1 (AP).—The whereabouts of Harry Seigel, wanted for questioning in the New Jersey torch murder and known to local police as Henry Szczygiel, is unknown to his brother, Walter Szczygiel, 830 Waverly Place, this city, or to the latter's attorney.

The lawyer, Matthew Ogonowski, and Walter tried to locate Harry in December when he jumped his bail bond of $2,500 in Yorkville court, New York city, when accused of larceny. The forfeiture of the bond almost bankrupted the Utica brother, who posted his home as security at the time. Walter and his wife borrowed the money to pay the bond rather than forfeit their home.

Walter is a laborer with five children.

Utica police have no criminal record of Seigel but believe that he was at one time accused of robbing a Rochester woman under pretense of marrying her.

"INQUIRER" WANTS TO KNOW ABOUT INTEREST.

Kingston, Feb. 29, 1928.

Editor Freeman.

Dear Sir:—I would like the privilege of asking through your columns a few questions in regard to the payment of interest by the banks of Kingston.

Why do not Kingston banks pay the same rate of interest as the banks in other cities and villages in the Hudson river valley?

Are not Kingston's banks as prosperous and well managed as the banks of Newburgh, Poughkeepsie, and all other cities and villages between New York city and Utica, and if so why should not depositors in Kingston's banks receive 4½% per annum on their money?

Why should savings banks pile up surplus over and above reasonable and lawful amounts which is of no value to any one except depositors who receive no benefit from it except in interest paid?

Why do Kingston people sit idly by and leave their money in Kingston banks and receive only 4% per annum interest when they can easily deposit it in any adjoining village or city and receive 4½% per annum? This is an important question and affects every depositor in Savings banks, National Banks or Trust Companies having savings departments and also affects the name and reputation of Kingston and every business firm in Kingston.

Very truly yours,
INQUIRER.

Murphy of Spring street, was sentenced this morning to thirty days in the county jail by Judge Shufeldt in police court. The check cashed by Mr. Stamatakos was for $15 and drawn on the Kingston Trust Company. Murphy was arrested at Haverstraw and brought back to this city Wednesday by Sergeant Phinney.

Wilson Award For Lindbergh

America's Ambassador of Good Will Voted $25,000 Award and Woodrow Wilson Medal—Shares Honor With Viscount Cecil and Elihu Root.

New York, March 1 (AP).—The name of Colonel Charles A. Lindberth today was inscribed alongside those of Viscount Cecil of England and Elihu Root as recipient of the Woodrow Wilson Peace Award.

The $25,000 award and the Woodrow Wilson medal were unanimously voted America's "ambassador of good will" by the Woodrow Wilson Foundation for his contributions to international friendships.

Viscount Cecil was given the first award in 1924 "for meritorious service of a public character tending to the establishment of peace through justice."

There was no award in 1925, but in 1926 Elihu Root was awarded the $25,000 and the medal for his work in helping to establish the world court.

No award was made in 1927, the Foundation instead holding a prize contest for essays on "What Woodrow Wilson means to Me". The first two prizes of, $25,000 each, however, were not given because the judging committee believed none of the essays submitted merited that distinction.

Colonel Lindbergh's award, the announcement said, was made because his flights have "brought a new and better spirit into the relations of the United States with its Latin-American neighbors".

CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION REINSTATES W. J. MAHER

Albany, N. Y., March 1 (AP).—William J. Maher, assistant secretary of the State Civil Service Commission, who was suspended last October 15 as the result of disclosures in connection with the investigation of the 1925 census, was reinstated today. At the same time the Civil Service Commission announced that Miss Julia M. Ryan, chief clerk of the payroll division, also suspended because of census developments, had resigned.

During the investigation conducted by Moreland Act Commissioner Randall J. Le Boeuf, Jr., into Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp's administration of the census, it was disclosed that Mr. Maher's wife had been on the census payroll but that she had apparently done no work. Subsequently the assistant secretary was suspended.

At a hearing before the commission last Tuesday night, Mr. Maher was said to have given a satisfactory explanation of the situation, and his reinstatement was ordered. The Commission took the view that his wife had been properly on the census payroll and that responsibility for the amount of work she was called upon to do rested with the census authorities.

RACE FOR COLLEGE AIRPLANE PILOTS

Washington, March 1 (AP).—A race for college airplane pilots, for $5,000 in cash prizes and trophies donated by Grover C. Loening, designer of the Loening amphibian plane, will be held at Mitchell Field in June.

In making this announcement the National Aeronautical Association says that Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, C. V. Whitney, Reginald L. Brooks, Henry P. Davison and Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., will be the judges. Each college flying club will be allowed to enter only one plane, but may enter three pilots. All planes will be of the same speed and power class.

Final details of the race will be completed at a meeting of representatives of the aeronautic association, which is sponsoring it, and the various college flying groups, to be held in New York, April 9. The types of planes eligible to compete also will be determined at that time.

Individual medals and a trophy cup will be awarded to the pilots, and cash prizes, payable to the clubs, of $500, $300 and $200, will be awarded to the three schools with the highest score.

LINDY WOULD LIKE TO VISIT PARIS AGAIN

Paris, March 1 (AP). — Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh would like to visit Paris again this summer.

Instead of swooping down, however, from the air at Le Bourget in view of thousands, he desires to slip through Cherbourg or Havre without attracting undue attention, he wrote a personal friend. He would enjoy a full week in Paris incognito for he "had no opportunity to see Paris at all in 1927," he said.

Sandino Rebels Killed 5 Marines

American Leathernecks Are Trapped In a Jungle Ambush—Three Detachments of Marines Sent to Northern Nicaragua.

Managua, Nicaragua, March 1 (AP).—With five American marines dead after being trapped in a jungle ambush, the leathernecks were massing in Northern Nicaragua today.

Followers of the rebel General Augustino Sandino dealt the marines the severest blow they have suffered since they drove the insurgents from their strongholds at Quilali and El Chipote in January, when they ambushed the patrol of 35. Eight marines were wounded in the clash, which occurred near Darali.

As soon as word of the encounter was received three detachments of marines were sent from points in the vicinity. Captain William K. Mac Nulty, of the 11th Regiment, who was on another mission with 85 men, also joined forces with Lieutenant Edward F. O'Day, leader of the ambushed patrol.

Three marines were killed in the action and two died from their wounds. Those slain were: Privates John C. Pump, Council Bluffs, Iowa; George E. Robbins, San Antonio, Tex.; and Albert Selauch, Jamestown, N. D.

Those who died from their wounds were Corporal Cicero D. Austin, Crockett, Texas, and Private Curtis J. Mott, Trenton, Wash. Private Lem C. Davis, whose address was not given, was seriously wounded, being shot in the left shoulder.

Those slightly wounded were: Sergeant Wilbourn C. Cristian, Northport, Ala., shot in hip; Sergeant Charles Hisham, Longmire, Wash., shot in thigh; Private Lewis E. Ballard, Troy, N. Y., shot in foot; Private Raymond B. Carter, Payson, Utah, shot in leg; Private Peter C. Crum, Omaha, Neb., shot in foot; Private Linton C. Maynard, Ranger, Texas, shot in elbow; and Private Clarence E. Phelps, Portland, Colo., injuries not stated.

The trapped detachment was returning with a train of 80 mules from Yali, where they had delivered supplies to their base at Condega.

As they advanced through the rugged jungle country, machine guns and rifle fire from the heavy brush mowed down their ranks. The rebels were finally driven off. Whether they suffered any casualties was not known here.

Lieutenant O'Day apparently spent the night at the scene of the battle burying the dead and treating the wounded.

DENIES ALIENATING AFFECTIONS OF DAY

Los Angeles, March 1 (AP).—Denying that she alienated the affections of George E. Day of this city, Mrs. Billy Sunday, Jr., divorced wife of the son of the evangelist, has filed an answer to the $50,000 alienation suit brought by Mrs. Olive Day.

The latter accused Mrs. Sunday of undue intimacy with her husband, and asserted that on one occasion, Mrs. Sunday induced Day to permit her to remain in his home over night. Mrs. Sunday, who was divorced several months ago, yesterday made a complete and general denial to the charges.

At a hearing on the suit last week Mrs. Sunday was ordered to pay damages of $10,000 when the case was settled by default. Her attorney insisted that a verbal agreement had been made with Mrs. Day's attorney for extending the time for filing an answer, and that for this reason his client was absent when the order was made. The order was vacated yesterday by Superior Judge Leon Yankwich when Mrs. Sunday's answer was filed.

STATE LICENSE BUREAU REPORTS RECEIPTS FOR YEAR.

Albany, N. Y., March 1 (AP).—The New York State Division of Licenses is being kept busy these days sending out renewals of commissions to the 35,000 notaries public scattered throughout the state.

These notaries paid into the state treasury $217,765 in fees during 1927, according to the annual report of Robert Moses, secretary of state.

There are 27,516 real estate brokers in New York state, and 16,865 real estate salesmen. Their combined fees for licenses in 1927 amounted to $588,601.75. The 2,286 billiard and pool rooms paid $22,465 in fees, while 142 private detective agencies paid $34,800.

There are only 62 state licensed auctioneers in the state, paying fees of $1 each, but the state law on this point covers only those places where a local ordinance is not in force.

Eighty-two theater ticket agencies paid $7,000 in fees to the state last year, while the 18 foreign steamship ticket agents paid $475.

SEARCH FOR THREE MISSING NAVAL AVIATORS

Lakehurst, N. J., March 1 (AP).—The semi-rigid naval dirigible J-3 with six men aboard left the naval air training station this morning to search the coast for trace of the three naval aviators missing since early Monday. The dirigible will return to its hangar late this afternoon.

The aviators, Commander T. G. Eliyson, Lieut. Commander Hugo Schmidt and Lieut. Roger Ranschousen, disappeared while on a flight from Hampton Roads to Annapolis.

Los Angeles Off For Home Hangar

Airship leaves Cuba on 1,300 Mile Voyage To Home Station at Lakehurst, N. J.—Expects To Make Trip in About 25 Hours.

Washington, Mar. 1 (AP).—The airship Los Angeles left her mooring mast on the tender Patoka in Guacanayabo Bay, Cuba, at 10:43 o'clock, Eastern Standard Time, this morning for the flight back to her hangar at Lakehurst, N. J., the navy department was informed by radio.

Her pilot-in-chief, Lieutenant Commander C. E. Rosendahl, had planned to continue the flight from Panama to New Jersey after refuelling at the Patoka yesterday afternoon, but decided to remain over Guacanayabo Bay over night when advised that conditions would be unfavorable for a landing at Lakehurst today.

An excursion over Cuba, possibly including Havana, was in store for the 658 foot craft today before she started for the coast line of the United States. Commander Rosendahl had informed the navy department that the 1,300 mile voyage would take about 25 hours, which would bring the ship into her home station at Lakehurst sometime tomorrow.

Bucking a 30 mile an hour head wind, the Los Angeles took more than 26 hours to complete the 771 mile hop over the Caribbean from France Field, Canal Zone, to the Patoka, to which she moored at 1:05 p. m. yesterday.

THOMPSON LAUNCHES MOVE TO DRAFT COOLIDGE

Chicago, Mar. 1 (AP).—Mayor Thompson, supported by a brass band and 3,000 cohorts of the Thompson-Crowe organization, has launched an organized move to "draft" President Coolidge for the Republican presidential nomination.

Recently back from Washington, the Mayor called a meeting yesterday of his political supporters, who unanimously endorsed his program and a platform of 18 planks. His new slogan was "America first; wets against world credit drys," based on an anti-prohibition plank in the county platform.

The platform denounced the Volstead act and the world court; demanded the federal government bear the entire cost of "America first" flood control and completion of inland waterways, and also asked for home rule for Illinois.

The action taken, it was explained, morally binds all Cook county delegates to the national convention at Kansas City to vote for the renomination of the President. At the suggestion of the mayor, all candidates on the ticket were sworn by Superior Court Judge Walter P. Steffen, to support the pledges if elected.

LOWDEN AND SMITH ENTERED IN NORTH DAKOTA.

Bismarck, N. D., March 1 (AP).—The time limit for the filing of presidential primary petitions expired last midnight, with the names of Frank O. Lowden of Illinois and Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York entered respectively for the Republican and Democratic preference.

A petition asking that the name of Governor Smith appear as a Democratic presidential candidate on the ballot in North Dakota March 29, was filed with the secretary of state late yesterday. Twenty-four hours before, a personal declaration of former Governor Lowden of Illinois was presented to the secretary's office by Harrison Garnett, Republican national committeeman.

E. J. Hughes, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, filed the Smith petition. Officials in the secretary of state's office said it appeared to contain many more than the 500 signatures required by law.

So far as has been learned, the name of Governor Smith is the only one that will appear on the Democratic presidential preference ballot. The same holds true for Mr. Lowden on the Republican ticket.

HOTEL ASTOR EARNS TWO MILLIONS YEARLY.

New York, Mar. 1 (AP).—The Hotel Astor in Times Square, built on what was once a farm purchased for $24,000 by the founder of the Astor fortune 100 years ago, now earns an annual income of $2,000,000, it was disclosed today with the renewal of the lease for 14 years.

Major John Jacob Astor of the British Horse Guards, present owner of the property, renewed the lease to the present manager, Frederick C. Muschenheim. Renewal of the lease disposed of reports that the landmark soon would be razed to make room for a skyscraper office building.

JUSTICE SCUDDER CAN'T CONDUCT CONNOLLY PROBE.

Albany, N. Y., March 1 (AP).—The court of appeals today prohibited Supreme Court Justice Townsend Scudder from conducting any further investigation into charges brought against Maurice Connolly, president of the Borough of Queens, in connection with the awarding of contracts for sewer construction.

The decision was on an appeal brought by Connolly from a decision of the appellate division, second department, vacating a previous order prohibiting Justice Scudder from holding hearings.

Says Sinclair Gave $160,000

Will Hayes Declares Sinclair Turned Over to Republican National Committee $185,000 in Bonds—Bonds Later Returned But $85,000 Was Given Back.

Washington, March 1 (AP).—Disclosure that Harry F. Sinclair made a net contribution of $160,000 to the Republican National Committee after the 1920 campaign was made today by Will H. Hays, who appeared at his own request as a witness in the Senate Teapot Dome investigation.

Hays, who is a former chairman of the committee, testified that in addition to the $75,000 which Sinclair had previously been credited with giving the committee, he had turned over $185,000 in bonds. These bonds were later returned but Sinclair gave back $85,000, he said.

The former Republican chairman disclaimed all knowledge of the operations of the Continental Trading Company, in which Sinclair was interested and whose financial affairs the committee is investigating.

He explained that it was the intention to return the $185,000 in bonds to Sinclair, but at the end of a campaign to wipe out the party deficit he found that he lacked $85,000 of the amount.

"I felt bound to reimburse Mr. Sinclair in full and I did so, hoping at the time that I could get some further help later from others," he said, "but this did not materialize. I had suffered financial losses, of which Mr. Sinclair knew. He did not feel that I should bear this burden personally, and he voluntarily returned the $85,000."

Hays sat close by Representative Cordell Hull of Tennessee, who was Democratic manager of the 1920 campaign, and who has denied his party received any of the Continental Bonds. The former Republican chairman was cross-examined by Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, who sought to get details of the delivery of the securities by Sinclair. Except to say that it took place in New York, Hays could not recall the exact location.

At the end of his statement he said he had given "to the best of my recollection all of the information in my possession with respect to any government bonds which may have been formerly held by the Continental Trading Company and later used for the Republican National Committee."

The witness said that at the end of the 1920 campaign the Republican National Committee found itself in debt to the extent of about $1,200,000.

Although he had retired from the committee in 1921 and from the cabinet in March, 1922, he said he felt a sense of responsibility because the deficit had been incurred while he was chairman and that he responded to a request from the treasurer of the committee in 1923 to aid in the endeavor to liquidate the remaining indebtedness.

WILL HAYS ASKS PERMISSION TO TESTIFY

Washington, March 1 (AP).—Will H. Hays, former chairman of the Republican National Committee, appeared at the Capitol today to ask permission to testify before the Senate Teapot Dome committee on Republican campaign contributions after the 1920 election.

Hays, who now is head of a large moving picture organization, came to Washington primarily for the hearings before the Senate interstate commerce committee on the Brookhart Bill to prohibit block booking of moving pictures. He previously had asked that the oil committee hear him and wanted to appear before the two committees while on his visit instead of going before the oil committee at some time later.

The former national committee chairman testified four years ago that he solicited a contribution of $75,000 from Harry F. Sinclair, lessee of Seapot Dome in 1923 to help wipe out the deficit inherited from the Harding campaign. It has developed that his contribution was in the form of Liberty bonds which once formed part of the profits of the mysterious Continental Trading Company of Canada. Some of these profits are alleged to have gone to Albert B. Fall after he leased the Teapot Dome to Sinclair.

Hays will tell the committee that at the time of receiving this contribution he had never heard of the Continental Trading Company and consequently could not have known that the Sinclair contribution represented a part of the profits in an oil deal which the Teapot Dome committee had vigorously condemned.

REPAIRS GAS LEAK, BLAST WRECKS HOME.

Binghamton, N. Y., March 1 (AP).—A blast wrecked the home of Joseph Testani last night, the members of two families narrowly escaping death.

A gas leak developed and Testani attempted to repair it but accidentally left an opening from which the gas poured unnoticed. When he applied a flame to the repair job to test its efficiency, there was a flash and a roar that shook the vicinity, blowing out windows, shattering ceilings and wrecking the building.

The occupants miraculously escaped without injury but the fire department worked an hour extinguishing the flames.

New York Water Supply Taking Hearings Begin

Judge Clearwater Explains Objections on the Part of His Clients and Others and Cites Past Experiences in Support of His Predictions as to the Future at Opening of Hearings Before Board of Water Control.

There was some very plain and much needed talking at the meeting of the Board of Water Control held at the court house today to hear the objections of any person or corporation interested in the diversion of the waters of the Rondout, the Neversink and the east branch of the Delaware by the City of New York. Judge A. T. Clearwater, representing the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation and the New York Power and Light Corporation presented the views of both corporations to the Board. The last named company has filed with the Board of Water Supply a claim for $750,000 for the damage sustained by it by the diversion of the Schoharie and the Gilboa dam. It is said they have been offered $250,000 which they have declined to accept. They propose to begin common law actions and to apply for an injunction unless some further provision is made for their loss other than either the existing law or the bill of Senator Wicks provides.

Pursuant to previsions of the law the hearing was held before Russell Suter, executive engineer of the State Water Power and Control Commission, who represented the commission, to hear objections to the proposed plan of the City of New York to take waters from the Rondout creek and the tributaries of the Delaware river watershed as provided under the plans of the city of New York to secure additional water for the city. The plan as contemplated calls for the taking of the headwaters of the Rondout Creek and several of the tributaries of the Delaware river, impounding the waters in reservoirs, from which it would be sent through tunnels to the Rondout creek reservoir created by a dam at or near Montela and from the Rondout creek reservoir the combined water would be sent to storage reservoirs now existing near New York in the New York city system through a main pipe line or aqueduct.

The purpose of the meeting was for the hearing of objections to the plans of the city as contemplated. Only those who had filed objections with the commission were heard.

The morning session was taken up, with the city of New York presenting its case and the taking of testimony of Chief Engineer Merriman of the New York City Water Supply Department, who gave an outline of the proposed plans. Judge A. T. Clearwater was the only attorney heard in objection during the morning session and he presented his objections in detail.

Acting Corporation Counsel Arthur J. W. Hilley appeared for the city of New York with Frank T. Fitzgerald and Frank Coyle assistants to the corporation counsel.

Among the appearances noted were J. H. Bouton for the town board of Rockland and the Livingston Manor Water Company; J. H. McCrear for the Middletown Water Company; Robert G. Groves, county attorney, for Ulster county; H. H. Flemming, and Mayor E. J. Dempsey for the city of Kingston; George Speenberg for the town of Middletown, Delaware county, and for the village of Fleischmanns; J. H. Korton for the city of Middletown; J. M. Mower for the city of Newburgh; J. B. Ryan for the county of Sullivan. Several other objections were filed with the commission but there was no appearance by counsel for several of the objectors, many of whom appeared in person. Clarence Hoornbeek appeared for the town board of the town of Wawarsing and Judge A. T. Clearwater for the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation and the New York Power and Light Company. Other appearances were noted later as counsel appeared before the commission.

On behalf of the city of New York Mr. Hilley filed the preliminary papers and maps as filed with the Water Power and Control Commission and made a part of the proceedings all preliminary papers and actions taken by the city. After offering his papers and exhibits and having them duly marked he stated that the project was for the purpose of supplementing the water supply of the city of New York as it was anticipated that by 1935 the city of New York would be in need of additional supplies of water. The present proceeding was brought so as to make it possible to start construction as soon as possible so that the city would have the necessary additional supply of water when needed and it was anticipated from present consumption and rate of increase that additional supplies would be needed by the time the present project was completed. The project will take about 10 years to complete and provides for the future.

Mr. Merriman was called to give testimony in support of the project but before his testimony was taken Judge Clearwater asked that he be permitted to enter his objections at that time and the court allowed Judge Clearwater to proceed. Judge Clearwater said he was not attempting to deny that the city of New York needs more water but he appeared and said that the city pay the compensate the corporations and individuals affected by the taking.

In presenting the objections and criticisms upon the plans filed by the city of New York with the Board of Water Control for the diversion of the waters of the Rondout, and the east branch of the Delaware and the Neversink filed by the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation, and the New York Power and Light Corporation, and to the bill authorizing that diversion introduced in the senate by Senator Wicks, Judge Clearwater, who represented both corporations, among other things said that it deeply was to be regretted that so important and so devastating a bill as that introduced by Senator Wicks should have been introduced by a legislative representative of Ulster county without the slightest consultation with any of the interests seriously affected by its provisions. The bill as framed was so destructive that he hesitated to describe it with the degree of accuracy it deserved.

The diversion of the waters of the Rondout utterly would destroy the Honk Falls generating plant of the Central Hudson, and eventually ruin its generating plant at High Falls. The bill so artfully was drawn as to permit the diversion of the waters of the Wallkill river, although they were not specifically enumerated. Peradventure the city acting under the concealed power granted by the bill should seize the waters of the Wallkill, the Dashville Falls and the Sturgeon Pool plant of the Central Hudson would be annihilated. He was informed by the officials of the Central Hudson that the disaster resulting from the diversion of the Rondout would be of such a character that it was doubtful if that corporation would undertake to erect and maintain steam plants for the purpose of furnishing the electric energy now furnished at Honk Falls and High Falls. Even if they did so, they would be compelled to increase the rates for heat, light and power 33 1-3 per cent over the present rates; if they completely abandoned them, Kingston and its residents would be compelled to apply to outside corporations for electric energy at an increased cost of at least 33 1-3 per cent and perhaps 40 per cent. The judge said it hardly was necessary to enlarge upon the serious character of the situation. It was significant enough that the city of New York, the beneficiary of this scheme, instead of applying to the Legislature through one of its own representatives, induced the representative of a region disastrously affected to present the bill. However, the history of the action of the city in the acquisition of the lands and the extinction of rights for the construction of the Ashokan Dam furnished an indication of what might be expected if the present proposed scheme went through in unaltered form. It had been his fortune to represent probably as many claimants and perhaps as large interests affected by the creation of the Ashokan Reservoir as any member of the bar. It was his experience that although the law assumed that commissioners appointed to appraise the damages of persons and corporations whose property was confiscated, were appointed because of their special fitness for that task as a matter of fact, they were selected, first, because the one from the city of New York either was chosen by or acceptable to the authorities of that city, and the other two commissioners were the proteges of the appointing judge.

So pronounced was this situation, said Judge Clearwater, that when he came to take up the claim of the Ulster and Delaware Railroad Company, because of the wiping out of thirteen miles of its road bed and the extinction of the passenger and freight traffic from all the villages from Stony Hollow to Phoenicia, he flatly informed Mayor Gaynor that under no circumstances would he present the claim of that railroad to any commission; that the railroad would endeavor to agree with the Board of Estimate and Apportionment upon the extent of its loss as required by the statute; if it failed to do so it would begin an action in the federal courts under decisions of the supreme court of the United States which held that property acquired for one public use could not be condemned by the right of eminent domain for a successive public use. Mayor Gaynor apparently after satisfying himself of the soundness of the judge's position, advised the Board of Water Supply and the Board of Estimate and Apportionment to use their utmost endeavor to adjust the railroad's claim without litigation.

The result, said the judge, was that we spent one entire year in the effort to bring about an adjustment, with the result that finally we agreed upon the loss to the railroad at $2,[illegible]. After that amount was [illegible] Board of Water Supply and the Board of Estimate and Appor-

Manchurian Oil Shale.

Shanghai, March 1 (AP).—A plant for the distillation of oil shale is being planned by the South Manchuria Railway for treating Manchurian oil shales. A plant capable of producing 50,000 tons of refined products yearly is said to have been decided upon, the plant to be at Fushun. The Japanese navy is said to have contracted for the entire output of the plant, considering the move as a step toward making the Japanese navy independent of imported oil.

FRANKLIN BUILDING WILL BE TALLEST.

New York, March 1 (AP).—When the International Benjamin Franklin Society carries out its plan for a temple of peace here in Franklin's memory, the Woolworth building no longer will be the tallest in the world.

The temple will rise skyward 900 to 950 feet. The Woolworth building, completed 13 years ago, is 792 feet high. The Franklin memorial will have 70 stories, of which three will be devoted to a museum of Franklinana, an auditorium and offices of the international society. The other 72 stories will be rented for offices.

William Guggenheim, chairman of the Franklin memorial committee, is planning the financing of the temple, which will cost between $15,000,000 and $18,000,000. Lieut. Commander Franklin Bache Huntington, direct descendant of Benjamin Franklin, is the architect. Associated with him are two other Franklin descendants, Stewart M. Turner and Rubin H. Rouden.

All important phases of Franklin's life will be typified in the architecture.

WONDERLY GIRLS ENTERTAIN AT BUSINESS GIRLS' SUPPER.

Knowing that the girls from the Wonderly Store would entertain, following the Wednesday night supper of the Business Girls' Club at the Y. W. C. A. this week, there was an excellent attendance at the supper. Miss Dorothy Kennedy, president of the club, announced that owing to ill health Mrs. Rowland would not be able to continue as the chairman of the program committee and that Miss Alma Tyler had been appointed to fill out the unexpired term of that office. A partial program for the supper entertainments for the month of March was given out as follows: March 7, the Stenographers will have charge of the program; March 14, the program will be in charge of Miss Ethel Salzman and the teachers; March 21, will be arranged for as to entertainment by the Young Married Women. The last date of the month is not yet filled definitely.

Miss Tyler gave the financial returns from the two one-act plays recently put on by the Business Girls' Club to be the net sum of $45.

Following the announcements came the program which consisted of a one-act play entitled "Home, Sweet Home", written by Edna Banjamin and Ruth Bell. The cast of characters was as follows: "Silas, the father," Edna Banjamin; "Mirandy, the mother," Clara Merwin; "Susana, little sister," Isabelle Russell; "Amandy, big sister," Ruth Bell; "Hiram, brother," Ethel Roosa. The log, not eligible for the dog-catchers, should have been included in the cast. Quite aside from the touching (?) home scene enacted, much could be said of the remarkable costuming and make-up, as well as the scenery. It was good. It was also very, very funny. Aside from the conversational tilts between members of the family gathered around the table with its honest-to-goodness kerosene lamp lighted, there were songs, old time songs led by Amandy. They were truly thrilling and the performance closed with the singing of "Home, Sweet Home", and the acting of the same, especially on the part of Pa and Ma. The applause at the end of the performance was vociferous.

ROCK DEFLECTS DRILLS, OIL ENGINEER FINDS.

Tulsa, Okla., March 1 (AP).—Because of deflection of oil-boring tools in underground strata, it is a wise oil man that actually knows where and at what level his well hits production, H. P. Bowen, Tulsa oil engineer believes.

Bowen says flatly that no drill hole is vertical, and points to the recent instance of two offset wells coming together at a depth of 2,100 feet as proof.

He has worked out a deflection table which shows that a 6,000 foot hole that strays 25 degrees from perpendicular ends up almost half a mile from its surface location, and actually is only 5,438 feet deep.

"As a rule a rotary hole shows the greater amount of deflection," Bowen says. "It has been reported that a 6,200 foot rotary hole if the Roxana Petroleum corporation, on being surveyed, showed a deflection of 25 degrees from perpendicular. Actually then, it was only about 5,600 feet deep."

TAVOLARA'S BOY KING HAS HUNDRED SUBJECTS.

Tavolara, March 1 (AP).—Tavolara, one of the smallest inhabited islands in the Mediterranean, has a new boy king who says that he intends to follow the example of King Amanullah of Afghanistan and put his country on the world map. He is 11-year-old King Paul, son of the late King Charles I.

Although it has less than a hundred subjects, Tavolara has been ruled by kings for 85 years. The monarch holds his job under a grant made by King Charles Albert of Savoy in 1843, but the royal family of Tavolara has been more or less neglected by the crowned heads of Europe.

The island kingdom of a hundred subjects wants tourists to visit it. King Paul's people are nearly all fishermen and follow the sardine schools which play around the waters of nearby Sardinia.

General Motors dealers expect to do business with a customer not once but many times. The good-will of every man or woman who drives a car out of their stores is their most important asset for the future. They are careful that every car shall represent value in proportion to its price.

Go to one of them for a used car that will give you dependable transportation at the lowest possible price; and make the purchase, if you choose, through the convenient GMAC Plan.

Diaz, Italian War Chief, Dies

Rome, March 1 (AP).—When Field Marshal Earl Haig of Great Britain died recently, Marshal Armando Diaz, who commanded the armies of Italy in the World War, exclaimed: "Now he is the first of us to go; who will be next?"

Two of the four allied commanders, Marshal Foch of France and General Pershing of the United States are alive. Marshal Diaz died yesterday at the age of 67.

Fearless and daring, this Italian soldier drove the invader back after the debacle on the Isonzo front in October, 1917. A year later he struck the blow that broke the Austrian front, driving a great wedge into the Austrian line, and while Austria was suing for peace.

To the Italian people he was known as "Il Duce of Victory."

The body of the warrior lay in state today, fully uniformed. A number of field officers who were wounded in the World War mounted a guard of honor around the casket. King Victor Emmanuel and Premier Mussolini sent special emissaries to convey their condolences to the family.

New York Water Supply Hearings

tionment congratulated themselves upon having effected an adjustment by which, as they claimed, the city had gotten the better of the bargain. Not only that, but the Board of Water Supply in commenting upon the great service it had rendered to the city in the matter of the construction of the Ashokan Reservoir and the connecting aqueduct, stated that they had obtained the lands in Ulster county for three million dollars less than their original estimate. Now under ordinary circumstances, said the judge, the acquisition would have exceeded their estimate, but it was because of the friendly attitude of judges and commissions that the owners of property in Ulster county had failed to receive any adequate return for the property confiscated. It is for this reason, said the judge, that I suggest here that a commission may be appointed upon the application of any person or corporation suffering loss because when these commissions are appointed on the application of the city of New York, they feel they owe their job to the city, and their desire to be continued as some of them have been, inevitably affects their judgment and their decision.

The judge added that prior to the city of New York constructing the Ashokan Reservoir, and diverting the waters of the Esopus, a group of New York capitalists met at his office with a view of forming a corporation for the purpose of utilizing the waters of the Esopus, first, for the development of electric energy which they proposed to furnish to Kingston and its people, and to neighboring cities in the Hudson River Valley, at practically a nominal cost, and then selling the water to New York and the intervening municipalities at a rate to be agreed upon. This, said Judge Clearwater, was not the so-called Ramapo scheme, but an entirely different plan. After a full consideration of the whole subject, and long consultations with Samuel D. Coykendall, the then president of the Ulster and Delaware Railroad, the scheme was abandoned, for the reason that Mr. Coykendall absolutely declined to consent to the relocation of the railroad and the inevitable destruction of the villages which subsequently were extinguished by the Ashokan Reservoir.

Judge Clearwater said that the city of New York had gained billions of dollars by the diversion of the waters of the Esopus and the construction of the Ashokan Reservoir, but not one penny had been received by the people of Ulster county because of the eternal deprivation of the waters of that stream, that every claim presented by any property owner or the owner of any business, had been contested, not only with remarkable pertinacity but with unusual ability by the legal staff of the city. Now, said the judge, this is a time for plain speaking. It also is a time for fair dealing, and we come to you in the first instance apparently having been deprived of the opportunity which we should have been afforded first to present our views to the Legislature of the state.

Particularly is this so because when the city of New York presented to the original State Board of Water Supply its request for the approval of its plans for the diversion of the waters of the Esopus and the construction of the Ashokan Reservoir at the hearing held in this room by that board and before a crowd that not only filled it but filled the corridors of the Court House, the yard of the building and the street in front of it representing every bank in the city and every important interest not only in the city but which would be affected by the diversion of the Esopus and the construction of the reservoir, I filed and presented a protest against the scheme because it did not adequately provide for compensation to the property and interest affected, when the State Board of Water Supply seemed about to deny the application. John Delancy, the distinguished eminent and charming corporation counsel of New York, who subsequently became one of the illustrious judges of the Supreme court of that city, whose majestic and impressive personality greatly resembled that of Thackeray, arose and said with captivating force, "Cheer up, boys, there ain't no hell. We are going to give you a great deal more than the Judge has asked for."

That remark and that assurance tipped the scale but no sooner had the State Board of Water Supply approved the city's application and the legislature passed the requisite act there the authorities of the city began to assail the people and corporations who presented claims for the damages they sustained, charging them with "shaking the plum tree," with making a "grab for the long green" and most alert, resourceful journalists continuously assailed them, not only in local newspapers but in newspapers throughout the state. One result of that was to instill in the minds of the Judges of the state an ineradicable belief that the people of Ulster, Greene and Schoharie counties utterly were destitute of scruple in the formulation and presentation of their claims. Another and sinister result was that rarely has an adequate award made by any commission been sutsained, and never so far as I am aware has an inadequate award been set aside. So widespread was this false impression that while the statute provided for legal and equitable loss, the commissions universally held that the term equitable did not in the statute as it does by the fundamental canons of the common law extend the relief given by the term "legal." A startling casus omissus is the utter failure of the bill adequately to provide for the destruction and replacement of transmission lines, highways, roads and bridges. I speak with measured phrase when I say that if the bill introduced by Senator Wicks unalteredly becomes a law, it will prove destructive in more forms than now I care to outline.

Judge Clearwater stated in closing that he did not seek to change the procedure followed in the Ashokan or Gilboa projects but he only asks that adequate compensation be guaranteed so that individuals and corporations affected by the proposed project woud receive proper compensation. Proper compensation he held had not been given in the other takings by the city of New York and he asked that some guarantee be given so that the present people and corporations might not suffer as had those in the past.

Mr. Merriman, in outlining the project for the city stated, that the plans had been completed only after a careful study which showed that the city would by 1935 need more water. The plan calls for the taking of the upper Rondout and certain tributaries of the Delaware and the construction of dams on these streams and the making of several reservoirs which would impound the waters and make it possible to send them through tunnels into the Rondout creek reservoir which would be the main reservoir. From this reservoir the main tunnel to the Croton water shed would be built. Through a hook-up with the Kensico and Hillview reservoirs the Rondout and Delaware waters would be delivered to the city with less pumping. The project would yield waters from a watershed of from 570 to 660 square miles and would provide a very considerable additional supply.

The construction would be in three stages. First the Rondout and Neversink would be developed and the other two stages would follow until the entire water supply was developed. Under the estimates made by the department the present surplus of water would be absorbed in seven years and in the opinion of the department after a survey, the city would need more water by 1935. The project would take ten years to put through and it was necessary to start operations as soon as possible in order to take care of the city's future needs.

Under the plans of the department every safe and proper method known would be used in the construction. The plans have not been completed for the actual work but should the commission grant the right to go on with the project they will be made and submitted to the commission for approval before work is started.

The matter of proper sanitation in communities affected, the engineer said, had been studied and every effort made to give relief. Sewers would be built where necessary to protect the water supply and all communities would be taken care of. The affected section was but sparsely settled.

The matter of paying damages on claims the city was amply able to take care of and claims for damages would be cared for in the manner in which the Ashokan and Gilboa developments had been.

On account of the sparsely settled section and the nature of the land the water was well adapted for the purposes of the city. The reservoirs being of large size, they would be well able to hold water for a long time to be acted on by the sun and air, and turbidity which would follow the swift running of the waters over the exposed soil of the mountains would be cared for by allowing ample time for the water to settle. Chemicals could be added when necessary to settle the water and clarify it. The water, he said, was excellent for the purpose for which it would be taken.

At 12:40 an adjournment was taken until 2 o'clock.

Washington, March 1 (AP).—For the second time in recent weeks, the House naval committee today refused to follow a navy department recommendation and voted to authorize an appropriation of only $14,890,000 for the modernization of two battleships instead of the $24,670,000 requested for the renovation of five capital ships.

A group of four love songs will be sung by Mr. Campbell, including "My Dream of You," by Paul Rodney; "You, Just You," by T. Richardson; "Mary," an old Scotch song, and "There'll Never Be One Like You," by F. E. Fancher.

THE STAY-AT-HOME VOTE

The political battle for supremacy in New York state this Fall will be decided in agricultural and smaller urban districts outside New York city. This territory is normally Republican in character. If it yields an increase averaging twenty more votes an election district to Republican candidates victory for the national, state and local tickets will be assured.

There are 4,674 election districts outside the Greater City and twenty more Republican votes per district would produce a party majority upstate of 542,480, sufficient to carry the election handily.

That this increase in party ballots is available is a matter of record. For instance in three counties alone comparison of Republican registration with Republican ballots in 1926 showed that 23,500 professed party members did not vote.

Active steps will be taken to capture these stay-at-home ballots in November.

PULLING TEETH.

Pulling teeth, it appears, is really a two-man job. It calls for two good men, too—not merely any couple of huskies that happen to be around. Men of brains and knowledge—to wit, a competent dentist and a competent doctor, acting in cooperation. There has been altogether too much careless tooth-pulling to get rid of bad teeth and remedy this or that disease. So says an editorial in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

"It is self-evident," says the writer, "that all sepsis and pathogenic foci in the mouth should be removed." That is, all decay and centers of infection which may spread disease through the system should be gotten rid of. "Success in this field demands more frequent consultation between the dentist and the family physician. The physician should not peremptorily order one or more teeth extracted, nor should the dentist extract the teeth of a person who is found by questioning to be under the care of a physician or in need of medical care."

Often very serious results follow the unwise extraction of a tooth. At best, the loss of a tooth which might have been saved diminishes the patient's ability to chew his food and thereby prepares the way for digestive troubles.

Progressive physicians have been taking this position recently in ever-growing numbers. Dentists are said to be slower in granting the necessity of consultation before extraction. Some physicians who are successfully using the ultra-violet light treatment for mouth infections insist that "a tooth should never be pulled if there is any possible way to avoid it." And they think there usually is a way.

INVITING CALAMITY.

Any citizen who believes in the sound maxims adjuring expense within income and use of flush times to provide against a rainy day must condemn Tammany fiscal policies which challenge Providence to produce a red figure on the books of the state.

To illustrate: The annual report of the State Comptroller, recently issued, estimates revenues for the 1928-1929 fiscal period at approximately $208,000,000. In 1920 and 1921, years of relatively bad business, revenues received at Albany were approximately $115,000,000 and $147,000,000 respectively.

This difference between the low revenue base of 1920-21 and the high revenue base estimated for 1928-29, is the difference between good and bad business. Obviously a sharp decline in industrial activity, such as Governor Smith so recently has anticipated, will be followed by a decline in state revenue.

In Washington, where the same problems of public finance apply, these contingencies are provided for by debt reduction and maintenance of an adequate surplus. In Albany, Tammany financial savants reverse this policy.

For instance, expenditures dictated by Governor Smith's recent budget amount approximately to $228,000,000 for the coming fiscal year. The difference between this sum and the $208,000,000 predicted income for the same period is taken up out of an estimated surplus for the current fiscal year (1927-1928) amounting to nearly $27,000,000 thus leaving an estimated surplus for the ensuing 1928-29 fiscal period of slightly under $17,000,000.

Between actual revenue receipts of 1920 and estimated receipts for 1928-29 there is a difference of over $93,000,000 and between 1921 and the same period a difference of approximately $61,000,000. It follows, therefore that recession of business, prior to or during the fiscal period under discussion can wipe out the small surplus estimated and cause a deficit which will necessitate higher taxes, or new taxes, or both.

In view of the above fiscal situation it might be well for Tammany to pray for continuance of Coolidge prosperity, rather than rend the air with howls of business calamity, which, if true, would call for an extra session of the legislature to devise fresh taxation.

WATER AND WEIGHT.

It has been my privilege for a number of years to examine many boxers, amateur and professional, for the Boxing Commission, and Amateur Athletic Union.

One of the important essentials is that the boxer be at a certain weight either at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, or in some cases at the ringside.

If he is overweight he is given one hour in which to take off the extra weight. If he fails to get down to weight, if an amateur, he is not permitted to box, and if a professional he must pay a forfeit sometimes amounting to a considerable sum.

You can readily see then that keeping his weight down is of vital importance.

After the boxer has weighed in at 2 o'clock he is allowed to eat as much as he likes before the evening bouts take place.

Now what do you suppose the boxer says to his manager or to himself when he steps off the scales, after having made the required weight? "Now for a big drink of water."

Why?

Because for weeks previously he has deprived himself of water, knowing that water is a weight producer, except in a very few cases. Reducing the amount of salt taken is likewise most important because salt helps to hold the water in the tissues.

Now as you know, many individuals are trying to reduce their weight by cutting down on starchy foods such as potatoes, sugar and bread, by using thyroid extract, or by actually starving themselves.

All these methods are dangerous if not done under the direction of a physician or where common sense is not used.

Starving the body starves all the tissues, and while removing some fat removes also blood, muscle, and other necessary tissues.

Taking thyroid extract may upset the regulating balance of the body, because it hurries the heart and other organs of the body.

The sensible method then is to use the method of the boxer, and cut down on the liquids and take plenty of exercise.

Remember water is good for you. The average individual is not likely to drink too much, because it is necessary for the proper functioning of all the tissues of the body. In fact, every cell in the body has been likened to a little fish, and of course it needs water in which to swim, to move about and do its work.

However, if you wish to reduce sensibly and to reap benefit therefrom, regular exercises, and the reduction of the intake of water, salt, and also starches, will help give the best results.

A STOP ORDER TO THE BROKER. By John Cassel

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

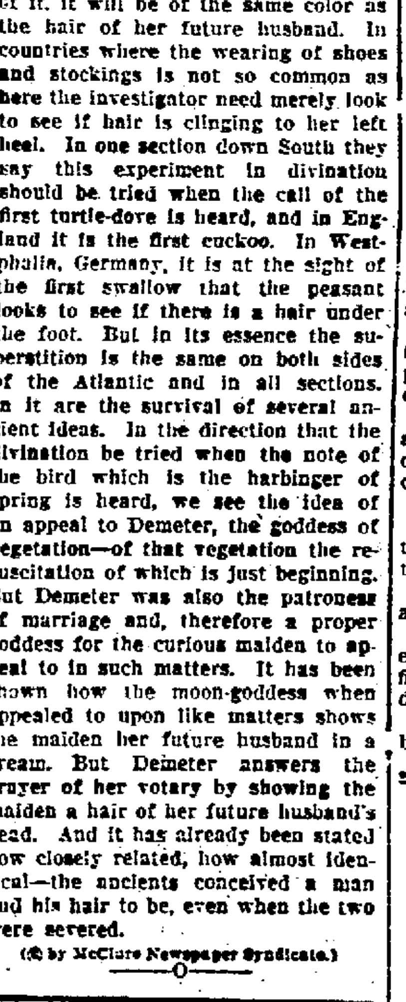

By H. IRVING KING

THE LOVER'S HAIR

HERE is a superstition of very ancient date which still exists in some rural districts of the United States and Canada, as well as in England and Continental Europe. When a girl hears the first call of the robin in the spring, let her take off her shoe and stocking from the left foot and if, upon turning the stocking inside out, she finds a hair in the heel of it, it will be of the same color as the hair of her future husband. In countries where the wearing of shoes and stockings is not so common as here the investigator need merely look to see if hair is clinging to her left heel. In one section down South they say this experiment in divination should be tried when the call of the first turtle-dove is heard, and in England it is the first cuckoo. In Westphalia, Germany, it is at the sight of the first swallow that the peasant looks to see if there is a hair under the foot. But in its essence the superstition is the same on both sides of the Atlantic and in all sections. In it are the survival of several ancient ideas. In the direction that the divination be tried when the note of the bird which is the harbinger of spring is heard, we see the idea of an appeal to Demeter, the goddess of vegetation—of that vegetation the resuscitation of which is just beginning. But Demeter was also the patroness of marriage and, therefore a proper goddess for the curious maiden to appeal to in such matters. It has been shown how the moon-goddess when appealed to upon like matters shows the maiden her future husband in a dream. But Demeter answers the prayer of her votary by showing the maiden a hair of her future husband's head. And it has already been stated how closely related, how almost identical—the ancients conceived a man and his hair to be, even when the two were severed.

IMPEACHMENT LOOMS BEFORE ATTORNEY GENERAL.

Boston, March 1 (AP).—A stir such as the commonwealth of Massachusetts has not experienced in years over the conduct of a public official has been created by admissions of Attorney General Arthur K. Reading.

Before a legislative committee considering a resolution to inquire into his conduct in office, Reading testified that he had accepted a $25,000 fee to act as advisory counsel to the Decimo Club, Inc., only a few days after his office gave that organization a clean bill of health. The money, he said, was paid through a third person.

The resolution of investigation was introduced in the state house of representatives by a clergyman, Rep. Roland D. Sawyer of Ware. Sawyer's move came close upon statements made when Reading was named in a New York court action as having received the legal fee from the Decimo club.

The club is represented as a sort of fraternal organization, designed to obtain financial benefits for its members. Its activities were assailed by Representative Sawyer, Democrat, as a "glorified Ponzi transaction."

When Sawyer offered his resolution to the committee on rules, Republican committee members indicated opposition to it.

Then Reading appeared and was asked flatly: "Did you receive a fee of $25,000 for acting as advisory counsel for the Decimo Club?"

"I did, sir," replied Reading.

"Did you receive that money in the form of a check made out to a third person?"

"I did, sir," Reading answered again.

Steps then were taken looking to efforts to remove Reading from office, but the attorney general has indicated that he will not resign.

Impeachment proceedings have been so few and far between in Massachusetts that the public does not even understand the steps to be taken. The state constitution provides that "the house of representatives shall be the grand inquest of this commonwealth and all impeachments made by them shall be heard and tried by the senate."

POLICE CAPTURE FOX IN HEART OF BOSTON.

Boston, March 1 (AP).—The shrieking siren of a flivver replaced the conventional fanfare of the huntsman's horn when the Boston police engaged in a fox hunt in the heart of the city's banking district.

Many persons noticed a large brown fox slinking disconsolately about the congested downtown area, apparently baffled by Boston's street system. Someone notified the police. Veteran officers at Station Two, miles from the nearest patch of anything resembling woodland, were incredulous.

Two policemen mounted their trusty car and the hunt began. They honked and cruised through several streets before the trail became warm. Reynard had headed for the only "woods" he could see—some planking in a building under construction. The police rushed him where he lay hidden under the planks.

Reynard's fate is a warning to other foxes that may go strolling in large cities. He is now in the "lockup" at Franklin Park Zoo. Nobody has explained how he made his way into the center of the city.

184 HOSPITALS AND INSTITUTIONS ARE USING FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE

Old Fashioned Medicine for Colds and Body Building Has Proved Its Value By 70 Years Success

Father John's Medicine is now being used regularly in 184 different hospitals and institutions from coast to coast in the United States as well as in Canada. The names of all these institutions may readily be obtained from the Lowell, Mass., office where the original orders for the medicine are on file in proof of our statement with thousands of letters of endorsement from institutions and individuals all over the continent.

During its 70 years of success in the treatment of colds, throat troubles and as a body builder, Father John's Medicine has come to be recognized in a great many hospitals and charitable institutions as having great value. Because it is guaranteed free from alcohol or any narcotic drugs in any form, doctors prescribe it for young children as well as older people.

Father John's Medicine is a high grade emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with other valuable ingredients. Because it builds new tissue and strength it is known as "the Greatest Body Builder."

Doctors have known the value of cod liver oil for a great many years and have used it freely in their practice. Modern research has determined the reason for its value, and given it the name of vitamins.

The original prescription for Father John's Medicine, from which it is still prepared, contained cod liver oil as its principal ingredient, and this is the reason why Father John's Medicine has achieved its evergrowing success as a tonic and body-builder for those who are weakened or run down.

The Dominican Sisters of St. Dominic Monastery, La Crosse, Wisconsin, allow us to quote from a recent letter:

"We have found out that there is nothing better than Father John's Medicine for colds, or building up the body; it does a world of good."

The "South Sea"

The name "South sea" was given to the Pacific by its discoverer, Balboa. As the isthmus of Panama, where he crossed it, runs nearly east and west, the Pacific forms its southern shore; hence, to the Spaniards on the isthmus it was the South sea. Until the Nineteenth century this was the common name, sometimes employed in a special manner for the South Pacific. It is still frequently used.

Lawful to Melt Coins

There is no law in the United States prohibiting the melting of gold and silver coins in order to obtain the metal. A coin is the owner's individual property and he can destroy it if he desires to. However, there is a federal law which prohibits the defacing of a coin and then putting it into circulation again. This is to prevent fraud by "clipping" coins.—Pathfinder Magazine.

WHEN PROMOTERS USE "CHARITY" TO DECOY TRUSTFUL CONTRIBUTORS

Investigation of Various Schemes for Defrauding Public Out of Money Disclosed by Bankers Association—Many Kinds of Fake Industrial Promotions Used as Bait.

By W. R. MOREHOUSE
Public Relations Commission, American Bankers Association

MILLIONS of dollars raised under the disguise of charity go to line the pockets of promoters. Ticket sales on raffles are commonly used, and while the loss to any one person who buys a ticket is small the aggregate loss for the United States runs into millions of dollars. Usually the promoters of these schemes first make a contract with some charitable institution to conduct a campaign for funds on behalf of the institution. They are to run the campaign in the name of the institution and share the proceeds. The whole scheme is often one of deception. To those who have been led to believe that their contributions go practically 100 per cent to charity, the following case we investigated should prove illuminating.

W. R. MOREHOUSE

A number of promoters recently contracted with a charitable institution to put on a campaign to raise funds by the raffle of a new automobile. So far as the public could tell from the banners used in displaying the automobile, the full amount of the sale price of the tickets went to the institution. There was nothing to convey any other impression. Apparently it was open and above board and was being conducted by men who were contributing their time gratuitously.

For several days a new automobile, mounted on a truck, was driven up and down the streets, with banners telling about the drive for funds for the charitable institution. One day the truck would go by displaying one of the popular makes of automobiles. A few days later it would parade by displaying some other popular make. Periodically the truck would pull into the curb where it would park for several hours while the promoters pleaded with passers-by to take tickets on the raffle and thereby help a deserving charitable institution to meet its bills.

Thousands "Touched"

Thousands of people, touched by the appeal for help, bought tickets, the total sale running into the thousands of dollars. Contrary to the belief of the ticket buyers their contributions did not go 100 per cent to charity. Instead the charitable institution received but 26 cents on the dollar, the promoters getting 52 cents on the dollar as their net profit, or twice the amount received by charity, while the remainder of 22 cents on each dollar represented the amount charged against gross sales by the promoters as expenses.

In other words, every person who bought a 50 cent ticket for the sake of charity, contributed but 13 cents to charity and 37 cents to those promoting the scheme. Whether you give to charity or make an investment it will pay you to get the facts!

Unfortunately there is a general impression abroad that wildcat promotions are confined to oil, mining and new inventions. The truth is, many stock selling promotions are operated under the name of other industries.

False Claims

A certain group of promoters investigated offered for sale stock in a proposed woolen mill. In order to sell the stock they resorted to the use of misrepresentation and false claims. After renting space on the ground floor of an office building fronting on a busy street they began their campaign. Orally and by printed advertisements extravagant claims were made for the proposed corporation which were grossly false.

It was claimed that the promotion had the support of the Chamber of Commerce, but it did not have any such an endorsement. It was claimed that the corporation had a signed contract for the sale of millions of dollars' worth of its products—orders enough to keep the mills running day and night for many years and accordingly insure its success, but all that it had was a valueless fake agreement.

It was claimed by two of the principal promoters that they had had many years of experience in the manufacture of woolens—in fact had organized and financed a woolen mill which is the largest in the United States. The facts were these two promoters had not been connected with any mills for over twenty years and they had attempted at different times to promote mills, all of which had failed. One of the promoters represented that formerly he was president and general manager of one of the largest woolen mills in Canada. The fact was the mill referred to had gone into bankruptcy and he had been caretaker of the plant.

The "Charity" Drive

This story of misrepresentation can be duplicated in practically the whole industrial field, and because our industries are being exploited with intent to defraud, it behooves every investor to investigate carefully. He should consult his banker before drawing his savings out and losing them on some wildcat investment.

Underneath the City Hall Dome

The Activities of Official Dog Catchers Discussed and Casual Visitor Wonders How Many Years it Will Take to Capture All Unmuzzled Dogs.

"Well," observed the Casual Visitor, "I see where the official dog catchers have caught another dog."

"Yes," replied the City assistant, "I know they have caught less than [illegible] dogs after several weeks."

"Which [illegible] makes me wonder," continued the Casual Visitor, "as to how many years it is going to take before all of the unmuzzled dogs in the city are captured and impounded."

"Evidently you don't think much of the plan in operation," observed the other.

"As a farce," replied the Casual Visitor, "it is as good as any I have seen on the stage, but for actual results it amounts to less than nothing, aside from the fact that it has caused some reputable citizens to try and live up to the law and muzzle their pets, while it appears to be regarded as a joke by a large majority."

"What's your idea of handling the situation?" asked the other.

"The city has enough men on the pay roll to utilize all of the city trucks and place a large force of men at work making a drive for at least three days in all parts of the city, and I believe that the number of unmuzzled dogs at large would be very greatly reduced."

"Another thing," continued the C. V., "they should also arrest the owners of the unmuzzled dogs, and if the owners were fined and jailed for a few days it would have a great tendency to eliminate the present risk of an epidemic of rabies."

"As the matter now stands, the dog can be redeemed by the owner by paying a few dollars in fees, or else the animal is killed. To my mind it is time the common council adopted an ordinance making it mandatory to have all dogs allowed on the streets muzzled at all times and placing the matter squarely up to the police department for enforcement."

COMPOSITE AUTO-SKI CONQUERS MONTANA SNOW.

Scobey, Mont., March 1 (AP).—The need of a country physician in the border counties of Montana, where ten feet of snow during winter months makes automobiles useless and sleds often difficult to operate, has evolved a new method of transportation.

It is a combination of automobile, caterpillar tractor and ski. In place of the front wheels there is a pair of long steel runners. Just ahead of the rear wheels is a wide tread truck wheel with heavy tread. The operating mechanism is a caterpillar traction drive.

Two such machines have been put in use. When not in use by the physician they are available for taxi service.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

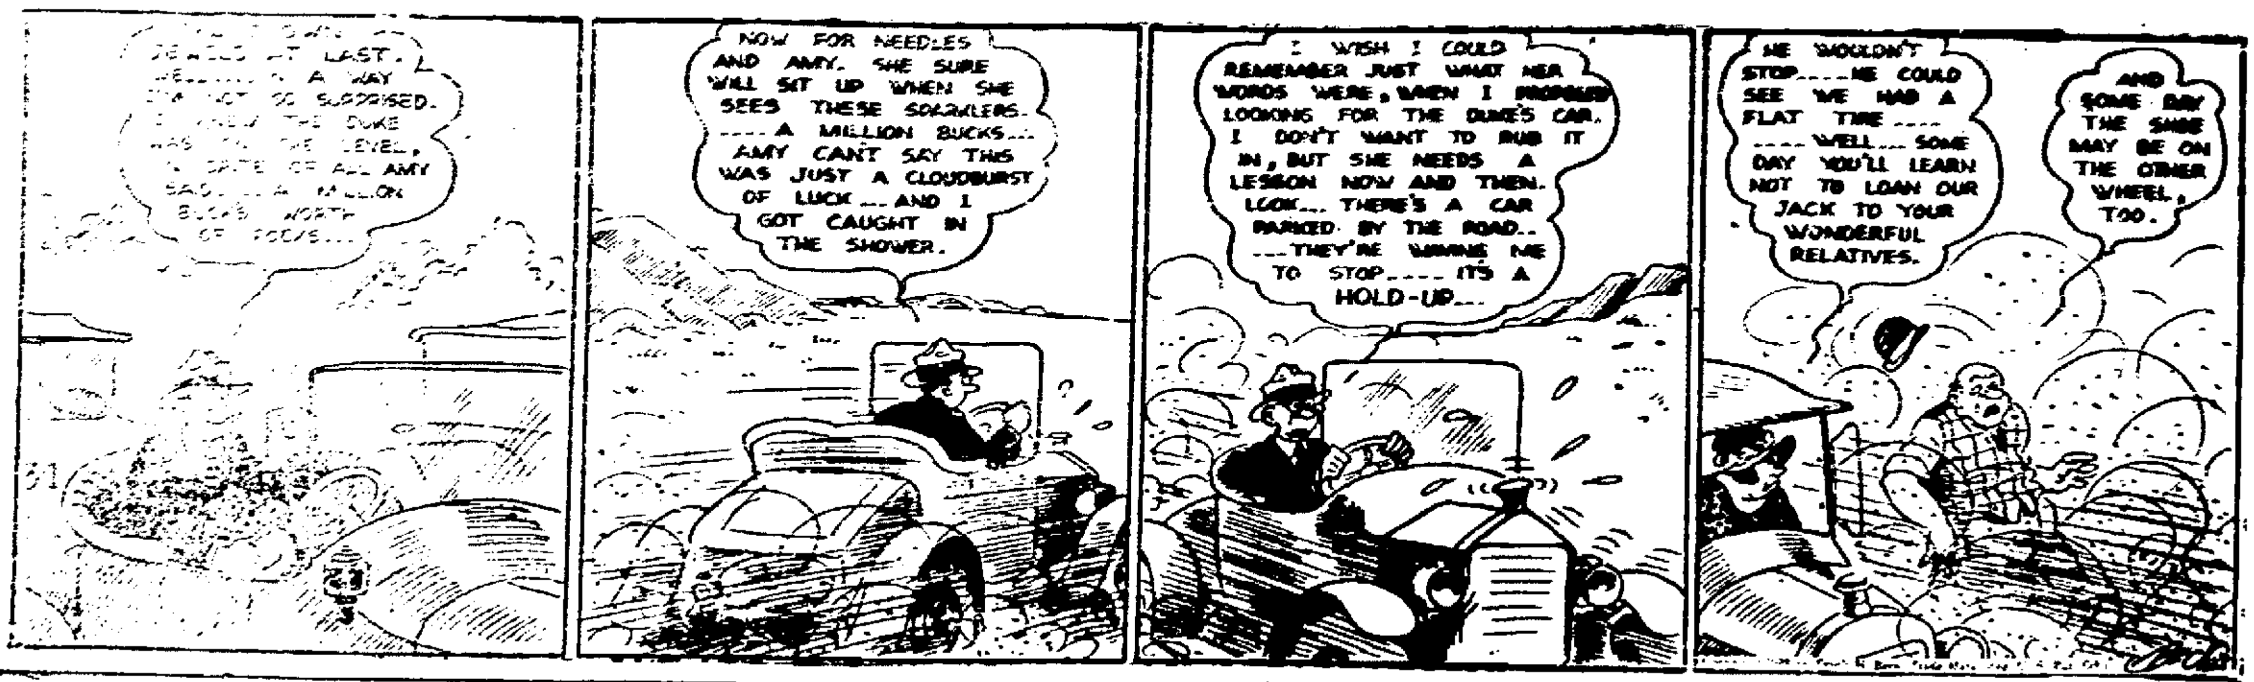

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

GAS BUGGIES—Uneasy Is The Crown-Jeweled Head.

NORTHWEST COUGARS GO TO GERMAN CIRCUS.

Sandpoint, Idaho, March 1 (AP).—Bob Bakker, famous cougar hunter of the northwest, [illegible] the snarling [illegible] were so many [illegible].

This season he is filling the request of a German circus for [illegible] cougars, and he [illegible] of Idaho, Washington and Montana with his axe and three "cougar hounds", catching [illegible]. With a steel lariat, he hauls them out of the trees.

The rest of his equipment consists of a pair of [illegible] climbers, a leather muzzle and a few short pieces of [illegible]. He has no need of a gun.

On one recent expedition, typical of Bakker's daily round of toil, six cats were caught. Bakker and two friends stalked about until they found the body of a freshly-killed mule-deer doe. Tracks showed that the cougars that killed it went in several directions.

Each dog started on a separate track, and one of them soon treed a ferocious cat. The men, hastening to the spot, found the dog baying under a tree from which a young cougar spat and snarled.

Bakker obtained a slender 15 foot pole and attached the wire cable, with its noose about ten inches in diameter, one of the hunters related, and climbing the tree, flung it over the cougar's head. The cable was pulled tight, and the cat hauled from the tree.

One man clung to the noose about its neck, another clutched it by the tail, and Bakker grabbed the big beast by the throat and adjusted a collar, chain and muzzle. An average sized cougar is about seven feet from "tip to tip" and weighs approximately 125 pounds.

Sometimes the hunter cuts the tree down. Bakker has had his narrow escapes, but has managed to "get his cat" hundreds of times.

"ANTIQUE" CLOCKS ARE ONLY SOUVENIRS.

Washington, March 1 (AP).—An enterprising concessionaire on the midway at the Chicago World's Fair back in the gay nineties sold queer looking wooden clocks of crude design for $2.50. Hundreds of them were carried away by reckless swains as souvenirs of the exposition. The wooden faces of the clocks were embossed with a picture of Columbus and the date 1492.

Children and grandchildren of the purchasers now are discovering the clocks in their attics, and confident they have antiques of great value, are offering them for the national museum collection. Some came to the conclusion that they were made [illegible] Columbus, whose picture was [illegible] on the face.

[illegible] months Carl W. Mitman, [illegible] of technology at the museum, has received more than a dozen [illegible] from such widely separated [illegible] Arkansas, Virginia, [illegible] Mississippi and New Jersey describing a valuable clock and [illegible] it for sale to the museum.

[illegible] man in Arkansas bundled up [illegible] carefully and sent it by [illegible] with a valuation of $10,000. [illegible] at the museum examined it and found that it was the same as [illegible] at the World's Fair 35 years ago. The clock was returned [illegible] owner with a diplomatic letter [illegible] its humble origin and placing a valuation of $10 upon it.

Pepper Pods Adorn Lobbies.

Las Cruces, N. M., March 1 (AP).—Chili pepper now enjoys distinction for its beauty as well as its utility in seasoning Mexican dishes. Long strings of the red, drying pods vie with the richly-hued Navajo blankets in adorning hotel lobbies. Families living in adobe houses also use pepper beads for brightening the dull gray walls of their dwellings.

350 Consecutive Appearances

Young actress discovers how to be on the job every day

SHE USED to lose one night at least every month from her work. Valuable time that lost money for the show.

But for over a year now she's been on the job every single day, for 350 consecutive appearances in the record-breaking run of a Broadway hit. What made the difference? Such a simple hygiene habit that it's surprising more women haven't found it out.

She takes a spoonful of Nujol regularly for a few days beforehand, each month. Nujol regulates the intestinal functions of the body at times when they're apt to be upset. Helps to keep normal, even under abnormal conditions. Cleanses the whole system.

Why don't you try Nujol, as this woman did? Take it for the next three months. You'll be amazed at the difference it makes.

Nujol can't possibly hurt you. For it contains absolutely no drugs or medicine.

Broadway Favorite

It was perfected by the Nujol Laboratories of the Standard Oil Company (New Jersey). Be sure you get the genuine.

TIPS FOR TAXPAYERS

NO. 16

Amounts paid or accrued within the taxable year 1927 as interest on indebtedness are deductible, with certain exceptions, from gross income in determining net income. Such items include interest on money borrowed to defray personal expenses and money borrowed for the purchase of real estate. If a person owes money secured by a lien or mortgage on his home, the amount of interest paid on such indebtedness may be deducted. However, interest need not be evidenced by lien, judgment, or mortgage to make the interest thereon deductible. Frequently indebtedness is evidenced only by notes without additional security.

Interest paid on behalf of a friend or relative where there is no legal obligation on the part of the payor can not be deducted. In such case the payment amounts to a loan or gift.

ANDREW JOHNSON HELD OBSTINATE BUT HONEST.

New York, March 1 (AP).—Andrew Johnson was the only president, in the estimation of Robert W. Winston, his most recent biographer, who practiced what he preached.

"I cannot but feel," writes Winston in his newly published biography of Johnson, "that this obstinate, narrow-minded defender of lost causes must be regarded as the only president who practiced what he preached, drawing no distinction between rich and poor or high and low."

The seventeenth president of the United States is described as appearing to have a complex, "perhaps an under-dog and a plebian complex", developed during a "neglected and impoverished infancy" and during the years when he was a tailor.

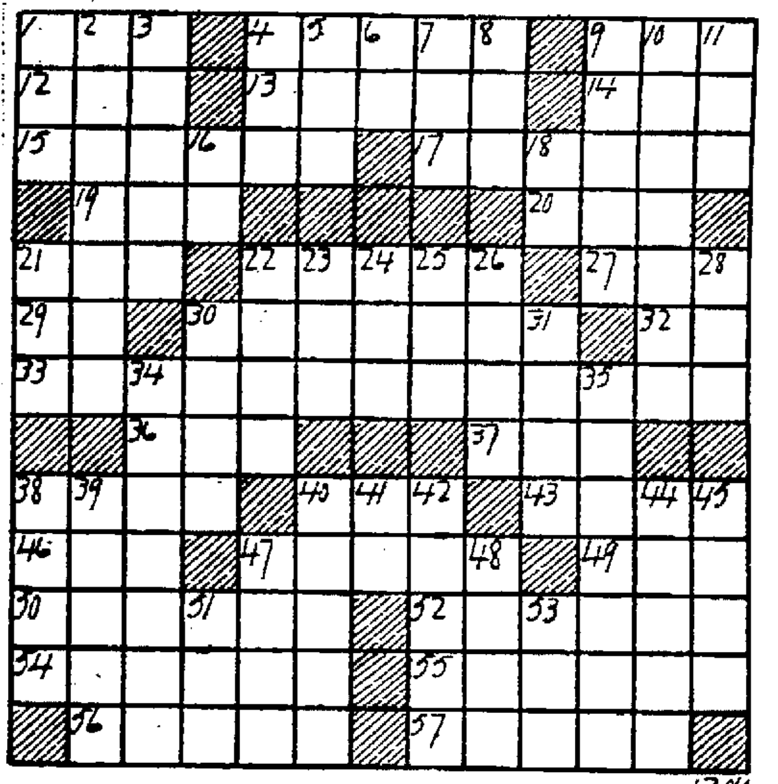

"When I first began a study of Johnson," writes the biographer, "I cherished the hope that the charges of boorishness and uncouthness were true, that he was what Carlyle calls a savage Baresark. Such a character would fit in well with the tough, impossible job he tackled. I was doomed to disappointment. The charge was untrue. * * *

"But there was a graver charge against him. He was an ambitious, cheap-John politician, and his acts were based on a general falsity of life. This theory of his falsity is one that has been incredible to me. For myself I cannot understand how one may act a part while he devotes his life to a great cause; or how he may be 'a prince of lies and no lies spoken by him.'

"On the whole, therefore, I must conclude that Andrew Johnson has not had a fair deal, that his life, though angular and old-fashioned, was honest and a real contribution to our civilization."

This year, Leonia, N. J., White Plains, and New York city are to join Ulster county at Camp Wendy at Wallkill.

Commissioner Borden gave the girls an inspiring talk on scouting, its advantages in developing the best kind of womanhood. She told of her first four years of scouting when the Wallkill Troop had an individual camp on the banks of the Wallkill called "Camp Sunshine". They did their cooking before a stone [illegible] and often under an [illegible] by a scout. That camp [illegible] developed into Camp Wendy, which [illegible] had a [illegible]. Commissioner Borden urged the girls to plan to go to camp this summer and to register early.

Mrs. Bogart complimented the many scouts present on their conduct and thanked the New Paltz Troop for their gracious hospitality.

The Modena Troop added to the afternoon's program by giving a [illegible] song and [illegible].

An excellent play entitled "College [illegible]," was next given by the New Paltz Troop. This was the hit of the afternoon and was admirably presented. Those taking part were Florence Seward, Betty Young, Muriel Gregory, Mary Radley, Ruth Sherwood, Lillian Kenny and Miss Taylor of the New Paltz Normal faculty.

After the singing of scout songs, another entertaining one-act play, entitled "The Fairy Riddle", was given. Then there were two basketball games when Kerhonkson beat Saugerties and in turn was beaten by New Paltz.

A county-wide campaign was started today for the support of the Girl Scout movement and it is hoped that all will come to the aid of this worthy cause.

STOP THE FAT AND GET THIN

The way to reduction is to stop the formation of fat. Modern science has found that way—by turning your food into fuel and energy—by supplying a natural element that helps do that. It is much better than starvation. That modern, scientific method is embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. People have used them for 20 years—millions of boxes of them. Now the results in slender figures, new beauty and vitality, are seen everywhere.

Each box of Marmola contains the formula, also the scientific reasons for results. So you know the effects are beneficial, and why they all occur. Learn what so many have learned in 20 years about it. Do it now. Ask your druggist for a $1 box of Marmola and learn what it means to you.

ELEANOR GUNN ON FASHIONS

Bold Color Contrasts Nearly Always Include Black—With a Clear, Bright Green, It is Extremely Smart.

Paris—Costumes of two colors have been impressive to date in Paris, regarding the city in the light of the spring openings. One of the colors, if one may so term it, is frequently black. One finds black with a clear, rather light green, and is roused to enthusiasm for the combination, because it is not only charming, but new.

Then there is black and white, which, like the poor, is ever with us; sometimes to a greater extent than others. Black and pink, also, a tried and true friend, to say nothing of black and beige, black and gray, and black and gold or yellow. Yes, the openings show that an affection for black exists, and designers have wisely not forced women to relinquish it altogether. It is advisable with color, and of those mentioned, according to one's preference, although with black one can dare almost any color.

Wide, diagonal bands of black on color, or of color on black, are ways of employing contrasts effectively for the jumper, or slip-over, both of which loom large on the horizon. The combination of wool—anything from angora and Shetland to jerseys and kasha—with crepe satin or with silk of any sort, including Shantung is another of the season's style messages.

A One-Piece Dress of Wool Crepe Has a Flaring Front Section in the Skirt, a Wide Stitched Self Belt, and Gilet Outlined in Two Contrasting Colors.

There is a loyaltw shown to the tricot or knitted variety of jumper, and for that matter for the entire costume, which is justified by the practicability of the fabric. Even homespuns are admitted, not alone for coats but for simple little travel or business frocks, frocks that are classed under the general classification of sports.

Brown and white is the coloring exploited by one house as a change from beige and gray, which with white are the sports choices de luxe.

NAMES SOME GOOD RED RASPBERRIES

June and Latham Recommended For General Culture.

The development of new varieties and a better knowledge of how to meet the inroads of mosaic are the chief factors contributing to a revival of interest in raspberry culture in New York, says G. L. Slate, assistant horticulturist at the Experiment Station at Geneva, who names a few of the better kinds of red raspberries for those who contemplate setting out new plantings.

"June and Latham can be recommended for general culture because of the bright, attractive berries that are produced in large quantities and find such ready sale on city markets," says Mr. Slate. "Their fruit is firm enough for shipping and when canned equals that of the popular Cuthbert in appearance and quality. June begins to ripen its fruit at the close of the strawberry season and has an unusually long season. Latham comes in two weeks later. Latham, too, is remarkably resistant to mosaic.

"For the home garden, roadside stand, or nearby market, Herbert will prove very satisfactory. The berries are large and of good quality, but they are too soft to ship well. Herbert is hardier, more productive and possesses greater resistance to mosaic than Cuthbert, and deserves a more extended trial.

"Where quality is the first consideration and where mosaic is not a serious factor, Cuthbert is still a prime favorite with its conic berries possessing delicious flavor. It is a favorite sort with the canning factories and preservers, and is much grown for these purposes."

"The autumn-fruiting or so-called everbearing raspberries can be recommended only as a novelty for the home garden. The autumn crop is usually light, the quality is not high, and the berries are often poorly developed. La France, or the closely related Erskine Park, and Ranere, or St. Regis as it is sometimes called, may be tried. Both sorts are hardy and extremely resistant to mosaic."

RADIANT FORMAL MODES STRESS HATS AND WRAPS OF METAL CLOTH

AT THE gathering of the social clan at opera and other midwinter formal functions, the pomp and glory of clothes display will proclaim to the world that so far as dress is concerned this is indeed an era of elegance.

The outstanding feature of this season's evening modes is the emphasis placed on luxurious simplicity, if one may so express it. To illustrate—the headdress and evening wraps in this picture are innocent of garish ornateness, yet because of the gold and silver fabrics of which they are fashioned, they are almost breath-taking in their magnificence and beauty. The same that is true in regard to evening modes pertains to fashions throughout—the important part that fabrics play in achieving versatility and elegance in the styles of the season.

Wraps made of metal cloth are the "last word" this season. They are usually accompanied by a little fitted skullcap or toque of glittering gold or silver cloth or lace.

Many of the wraps are nothing more or less than huge squares of gold or silver brocade or of plain weave metal cloth. To be sure they are finished with hemstitching and fagoting of seams which lends to their attractiveness. Sometimes there is a center square of gold brocade bordered a quarter of a yard deep with a weave of silver.

There's a clever knack in wearing these metal cloth shawls which must be acquired to give them the proper cachet. Of course, if one prefers they can be enwrapped snugly about the shoulders as pictured, to the left. However, the newest thing is to bring one edge up about the throat, letting it fall over like a large collar, enfolding the remainder of the shawl about the body somewhat after the manner that the Indians wear their blankets.

Not all metal wraps are shawls, however, for many are made in loose graceful dolman fashion. The coat at the top in the illustration is handsomely made with flowing sleeves and rich fur trimming. Young girls are having this gold and silver "lame" made up in coats of slim silhouette, quite like the street cloth models.

"I just soak and rinse for a whiter wash —this easy way saves the clothes, too!"

"RINSO saves so much time and work that I use it for my wash and for my other cleaning, too.

"I soak the clothes overnight in the wonderful Rinso suds and they're so easy to wash that about all I have to do is rinse and hang out. And talk about white clothes! Why, even when I boiled them they never turned out nearly as white and sweet as now!

"And when it comes to dishwashing and making the house bright and spotless, there's nothing like Rinso. I use it for the floors, sinks, tiles, woodwork and everything. You surely get your money's worth in a package of Rinso."

...Millions use Rinso. Thousands write us letters like this one, which is from a woman living right around here...

Try these amazing suds next washday!

You never saw such thick, creamy, lasting suds as Rinso gives—in hard water or soft. Dirt and stains float right off, and clothes rinse whiter than ever. Even grimy cuffs and edges become snowy with little or no rubbing.

This way saves the clothes; they aren't scrubbed threadbare. Saves the hands, too—they're not in hot suds so long.

You get your full money's worth when you buy Rinso, the granulated soap—it's so compact. Just feel how weighty the package is. It's all you need—no bar soaps, chips or powders. For economy and best results follow the easy directions on the package.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

New York—Hollywood is to lose and Broadway is to gain a glorifying girl, if Flo Ziegfeld has his way. He is sending Henry Clive, artist, to capture the most captivating beauty of filmland for the stage.

Los Angeles—Would Tom Mix like to bring up his daughter in the sphere of life in which cowboys move? "Certainly" he told attorneys for his ex-wife in court, "and I'd like to live that way myself, believe me." He has been paying his daughter $229 a month and the court increased it to $375, which was construed to be plenty for sending her to boarding school.

New York—In the opinion of Tay Pay, Great Britain's film censor, who is visiting us, the standard of criticism for stage and screen should be different. On the stage, he says, a tone of voice can indicate passionate emotion, but it must be a pretty good hug to make an impression in the cinema.

Lynbrook, N. Y.—Back from a tour, Theodore Roosevelt addressed the Republican Club on toleration. "We have no Heflins in the Republican party," he said.

Los Angeles—Jim Reed just will be different. "I'll ride a live horse if I ride at all," he said when invited to mount the mechanical hobbyhorse of the Breakfast Club as a test of his qualifications for the presidency.

New York—Dr. Otto Peltzer wears size 13 AA when he races and has the most perfectly developed feet of any athlete ever seen by Dr. William M. Scholl, Chicago orthopedist. Dr. Scholl was among those present at the Garden when the doctor came in a poor third to Hahn and Conger.

Athens—Greece is intent on conquering malaria where Mark Antony and Octavius vanquished Brutus and Cassius. The plain of Philipi is to be drained and 900,000 acres made available for cultivation and habitation.

New York—Honesty shall be rewarded. Alexander Lubowsky, who found and restored $52,000 that dropped from an armored truck, has been given $1,500. Offered a job he said he would go into business. An interpreter translated the remarks of Mrs. Lubowsky from the Russian as "A wise head fell on the shoulders of a fool." What she meant could not be cleared up.

Edgemere, N. Y.—Charles Zilitz, 67, has sent word from Miami that he has arrived in his 14 foot rowboat after 129 days at the oars in a 1,500 mile trip from the Battery, New York. And he feels 20 years younger. He was once a deep sea sailor and for 37 years has been conducting a bathing pavilion.

Mr. and Mrs. John Cimprintz of Brooklyn spent the week end with Alexander Stimatz.

Mrs. William Weber, who lives on the Salt Point road, Dutchess county, is the mother of triplets, born on the 13th of February. Their names are Catherine Elizabeth, John Frederick and Louis Richard. The girl weighed four pounds four ounces, the boys four pounds six ounces and four pounds five ounces respectively. All are in perfect health. Mr. and Mrs. Weber have two other children, William, aged nine and Sarah, aged seven. Mrs. Weber is well known here, having grown to womanhood in this place. She will be remembered as Miss Millie Light. She has resided in and near Poughkeepsie for about ten years.

HALL'S HINTS ON COLLEGE LIFE HEARD BY HI-Y CLUB

At the weekly meeting of the Hi-Y Club in the Y. M. C. A. Wednesday evening, Chester R. Hall, secretary of the boys' division of the "Y", answered four important questions for students who expect to get the most out of a college course. The speaker said that unless those who enter college could observe the hints given the best results of a college course would not be obtainable.

The student at college must assume responsibilities the speaker pointed out and thoroughly explained after asking "Are you man enough to get up promptly and prepare yourself for school every morning without a reminder?"

"Are you man enough to study every day and study all your lessons until you know them?" was the second question. Mr. Hall pointed out that concentration forms a necessary factor in the make-up of a college student. The high school students were told that "bluffing one's way through college" is impossible.

Thrift was touched upon and an explanation concerning spending of money for things not absolutely needed was given after the question "Are you man enough to carry loose change in your pocket without spending it?"

The Hi-Y members were impressed by the closing remarks of Mr. Hall who said an honorable failure is better than passing an examination by unfair means. The disadvantages of "cribbing" or copying were thoroughly explained in [illegible] man enough, when another fellow's answers are in easy reach, to fail in an examination rather than obtain unlawful aid?"

Harry H. Flemming, president of the board of education, was unable to attend the meeting and luncheon and the Hi-Y members are [illegible] ing the meeting when he will be present to address them. The speaker for next Wednesday's meeting and luncheon will be announced in the near future.

"It has been my privilege to see many of the great pictures which have been produced in the past ten years. I doubt if any picture ever made excels this picture of yours portraying the life story and the great tragedy of the ages in the Life of Christ. It was most impressive from beginning to end. The photography and the acting were the best I have seen in pictures of this kind. The impression which it makes upon the mind of the observer is far greater than that which could possibly be made by the reading of the story of Christ's Life in the Scriptures."—M. C. Delaney Fights Heeney Tonight

New York, March 1 (AP).—Jack Delaney of Bridgeport and Tom Heeney of New Zealand move into the first part of Tex Rickard's new heavyweight elimination series in a 15 round bout at Madison Square Garden tonight. The winner probably will be accorded recognition as the next challenger of Champion Gene Tunney.

When the boxers enter the ring they will be rated equally to take the victory despite Heeney's advantage of some 20 pounds over Delaney. In trying to figure out the result for this fight a majority of ring critics have straddled the fence.

Many observers feel that Delaney must knock out Heeney within the first six or seven rounds if he is to be returned the victor. The New Zealander is considered a rugged boxer of the plugging type, who absorbs plenty of punishment for the sake of wearing down his opponent. Heeney never has been counted out.

The Australian made an impressive showing in his recent draw with Jack Sharkey of Boston. At the time, many fans felt Heeney would have received the verdict if the bout had gone the championship distance of 15 rounds instead of 12.

Tonight's bout might well be labeled as the battle of the Dominions. Delaney, who now has made Bridgeport his residence, is a native of Canada, while Heeney is the product of New Zealand.

The principals furnish sharp contrasts in personality. Delaney is a big showman, while Heeney is of a retiring nature. Delaney's knockout victories over second and third raters in his recent comeback campaign have rekindled hopes among his admirers that he has recovered the deadly punch that swept him to the top of the light-heavyweight ranks.

CHANDLERS TO PLAY WEST POINT ARTILLERY

In a preliminary to the Industrial League basketball games at the Y. M. C. A. Saturday night the Chandlers will battle the West Point Artillery at 7 o'clock. Several of the men who played football here against the famous Yellow Jackets, Kingston's semi-pro football representatives, are expected to be in the squad of court performers. Coach "Pop" Hinds of the Kingston team will send the regular Chandler line-up against the soldiers.

Next Monday night the Chandlers will play the Kerhonkson High School team on the latter's court.

PENNSYLVANIA WINS WITHOUT A STRUGGLE

New York, March 1 (AP).—The University of Pennsylvania took over the undisputed leadership in the Intercollegiate Basketball League today without a struggle.

Dartmouth, which shared the crest with the Quakers, floundered before the Yale quintet at Hanover last night by 47 to 39, thereby being tossed into second place in the standing. It was Dartmouth's third setback of the year and the second at the hands of Yale. Langdell of Dartmouth scored ten field goals and three on free tries.

Hamilton, Ont., March 1 (AP).—Johnny Miles, of Hamilton, and Percy Wyer, of Toronto, have been chosen to represent Canada in the Marathon at the Olympic games in Holland next August, M. M. Robinson, chairman of the Marathon committee of the Canadian Olympic body, announced today.

Cliff Bricker of Galt, Ont., and Harold Webster of Hamilton, were named Olympic Marathoners after trials here last September. Two runners more may be selected during the next four months.

AMERICAN CHANCES BEST FOR SPRINTS

Coach Names Four Stars for Short Runs.

Eddie Farrell, Harvard track coach and member of the 1924 American Olympic coaching staff, believes that America's sprinters will provide the United States with the best chances for winning track events at this year's Olympics in Amsterdam. He bases his opinion on comparative times turned in during the last year or so by the leading sprinters of the world.

Of the European stars, Anderson of Norway; Skotrom, Sweden; Boner, Switzerland; Hulen and Kornig of Germany, and Larcado of Spain have all done better than an official 10.8 seconds for 100 meters.

"America's best bets over the short distance are Charlie Borah of southern California, Chet Bowman, A. C. Locke and Al Miller," Farrell said. "Miller, by the way, has done :09.9 for the 100 and ought to be a real threat."

Charlie Paddock, the veteran California speed merchant, has passed his crest, Farrell thinks, and will be hard put to regain his form of eight years ago.

In the 200-meter event, Farrell's leading European choices for the 100-meter dash will be augmented by Peterson of Sweden and Svenjach of Poland, all of whom have been clocked in 22 seconds or better. Borah and Locke are considered the pick of the American sprinters for the longer distance, with Alderman of Michigan Aggies labeled as "some one to watch."

Young Stribling Plans to Battle All Comers

"Pa" and "Ma" Stribling are back in the boxing game.

It was "Pa" and "Ma" traveling with Young Stribling in an auto-house car that gave the young man much of his prominence in the fistic world.

Last year William, Jr., was under the watchful eye of Walk Miller, manager of a string of boxers, but the contract expired the first of the year and once more "Pa" Stribling assumed charge.

This time it will be the Airplane Special, carrying the trio from place to place, and the air pilot will be none other than Young Stribling himself.

It will be the first time in history that a boxer has traveled from place to place with his family by airplane.

Stribling intends to meet all comers during his tour about the country, both light heavies and heavyweights.

Tommy Loughran's Title Secure, He'll Forget It

Tommy Loughran will forget about the ring for a while now that he has disposed of all of the outstanding challengers for the light heavyweight title. He leaves for a few months' vacation in South America.

"I've done enough fighting now and I don't want to think about the ring for a few months," he said. "When another fellow comes along I'll be ready and willing to give him a bout."

Loughran is undecided about entering the heavyweight division and trying to get a bout with Gene Tunney.

Indispensable Gridder

Golfer Catches Worm and Forfeits Stroke

A golf ball which caught an early worm brought about all kinds of complications in English golf circles.

H. C. Shaw, out one morning almost before the dew was off the putting greens, removed the early worm from its pose on his golf ball.

The act was referred to the rules of golf committee of the Royal and Ancient Club of St. Andrews, which ruled that Mr. Shaw had penalized himself to the extent of one stroke by touching the ball before putting.

Important Fridays

Among the important events in American history that have occurred on Friday are the discovery of America by Columbus, the sailing of the Pilgrims from Southampton, the seizure of Bunker Hill, and the surrender of Cornwallis.

Hahn Adds Another Victory

New York, Mar. 1 (AP).—Lloyd Hahn has added the "mile of the century" to his long string of triumphs on the boards this winter.

The short-stepping Boston flier ran Ray Conger, Illinois A. C., and Ivo Peltzer, German champion, into the ground in the International mile feature of the Knights of Columbus meet last night. But he failed by a full second to equal the world's indoor record.

The 20,000 spectators in Madison Square Garden also saw the sensational rise of Barney Berlinger, 19-year-old freshman at the University of Pennsylvania, into the top rank of America's all-around athletes. The husky Mercersburg Academy product galloped off with first honors in the Septathlon, defeating such nationally known stars as Fait Elkins, of Nebraska, national title holder, Harold Osborn, Olympic champion and Emerson Norton, Osborn's Illinois A. C. teammate.

Hahn's failure to realize his cherished ambition to break the indoor record for the mile of 4:12, held jointly by Paavo Nurmi and Joie Ray, was due chiefly to the fact that the Boston A. A. star was forced to make his own pace the whole way. Taking the lead with the gun, Hahn pounded away steadily at a pace his rivals did not care to better. For six laps the three runners hung closely together, with Conger second and Peltzer third. At this stage of the game, however, Hahn's great endurance powers began to tell and he soon had drawn away from his rivals.

At the close of the ninth lap, Hahn flashed a spurt that carried him to the tape 25 yards in front of Conger, while the Teuton champion, exhausted, jogged into the finish line. Despite the fact that he was not extended Hahn covered the distance in 4 minutes, 13 seconds, the fastest mile of the season. The Boston flier gained revenge, at the same time, for the defeat Conger administered to him in a 1,000 yards duel at Kansas City a few weeks ago. That reverse was the first that Hahn had suffered in nearly three seasons.

Training With The Big Leaguers

New York, March 1 (AP).—Davey Bancroft, formerly of the Phillies, Giants and Braves, has joined Wilbert Robinson's flock of Robins at Clearwater, Fla. He likes the idea of being a mere player instead of carrying the added worries of a manager.

Bancroft reported for spring training yesterday. He said he was glad of the shift from pilot of the Braves to shortstop for Brooklyn. This will be Bancroft's thirteenth year in the majors.

The Giants reached Augusta last night after the trip from Hot Springs, Ark., with several additions to the party, including Lefty O'Doul, the highly-reputed outfielder from the Pacific Coast League.

Manager McGraw's training schedule calls for two workouts daily, the rookies to report at 9:30 a. m. and 2 p. m., and the regulars half an hour later at both morning and afternoon sessions. McGraw said he wanted to inspect the newcomers without the regulars in the line.

The Hurlers performed for the Yanks in practice at St. Petersburg. Newt Moore, brother of Wiley, did his bit before the critical eyes of Miller Huggins. Lou Gehrig belted a ball into a distant lake. Later the performance was duplicated by Cooke, a lefthanded hitter.

Meanwhile, Babe Ruth chased about the golf links. He said he wasn't keeping tabs on his score.

HEBREW-AMERICANS WIN OVER FIRST DUTCH TEAM

The Hebrew-Americans defeated the First Dutch Juniors at the Salvation Army court by the score of 15 to 14. The score at the first half was 6-5 in favor of the First Dutch, but in the second session the Hebrew lads finally emerged victorious. Rogers of the Hebrews led in the scoring with ten points. Newell of the First Dutch led his team with eight markers. The score was tied 14-14, with 30 seconds to play, when Rosenberg sank a foul to win the game.

The Hebrew-Americans would like to meet the St. Mary's Parochial School quintet and all Junior Church League teams.

STRANGLER'S HEADLOCK FINISHES UTICA PANTHER

Kansas City, March 1 (AP).—For the second time in two years Joe Malcewicz, Utica Panther, has lost to Ed (Strangler) Lewis, heavyweight wrestling champion, before either had won more than one fall in a scheduled finish match.

Malcewicz forfeited his match to Lewis here last night when he was unable to continue after the Strangler took the first fall with a headlock in one hour and fifty minutes. The Utica grappler claimed to have suffered a torn ligament in the left shoulder. Malcewicz escaped from three headlocks, but after his shoulders were pinned to the mat with a fourth, he was carried to his corner, apparently in a daze.

Malcewicz, however, had Lewis in trouble several times, twice with body scissors and a wristlock. The Strangler, in addition to the headlock, also used a toe hold to advantage during the bout.

THE SPRING BREEZE

(© by D. J. Walsh.)

SPRING had been long on the way, but who could doubt that at last it had come?

Not the lawn sloping from the red-brick house to the avenue, for wasn't grass sprouting all over it, young and green? Not the long line of trees, for new-born leaves were peeping from every twig. Not Norah, surely, who, running back from an errand to the corner grocery, knelt beside a tuft of violets, delightedly breathing in their fragrance. Her hands reached out to gather them, then fell empty to her sides.

"You're happier where you are, darling," she murmured. "And the mistress would only scold me for wasting my time picking you, she's that cross!"

Norah's hands were slim and pretty, for all that they cooked and served Miss Brockingall's meals in the red-brick house and swept the rooms and dusted them and did a hundred things besides, her little feet flying back and forth and her voice lifted in a song as bright as her Irish smile.

Louder, however, than lawn or trees or even violets, a wandering breeze sang out that spring had come! Spring had come! It was a rogue of a breeze, with an insistent voice that wouldn't be silenced. It spoke of cowslips and dandelions and murmuring rivers free at last from their load of ice, and as it played with Norah's sunny hair it whispered:

"Springtime is courting time! Have you a lover, Norah, to tell you how pretty you are? Have you a lover to stroll out with in the lengthening evenings? Why haven't you a lover, Norah?"

"Ah, be still!" Norah said sharply to her own thoughts. "What would I be wantin' of a lover—shure, all they do is waste your time and break your heart afterward, so I'm told."

"Some may, some may, Norah," lilted the spring breeze. "Put a tall, straight young fellow, now, in policeman's uniform, with buttons that shine in the sun—wouldn't he be the right lover for a pretty girl of eighteen?"

"I just despise a man that can only look and look and hasn't spunk enough to—" Norah's thought remained unfinished. "He wouldn't be at a loss for an opportunity if he wanted it real hard. He's been on this beat ten days."

"He's shy and may be a bit slow—those big men sometimes are," murmured the spring breeze. "But aren't his brown eyes kind and true, Norah, and his smile, isn't it pleasant? Now, how would it be if you came to his help and made an opportunity yourself?"

"Whist!" cried Norah impatiently. "The way my thoughts do run on! It must be the spring in the air!"

So the responsibility lay with the spring breeze that blew the thought into Norah's mind. She dallied with it, for all her show of indignation, and took it with her into the basement laundry, where a large boiler full of clothes awaited her manipulations. With the perseverance that marked its parent, the spring breeze, it kept repeating: "It isn't as if you were asked to do anything unbecoming a nice girl, Norah. But you know you liked him from the first and it's not everybody you like. You're choosy! O course, instead of standing gassing so long with old Mr. Akerman way down the avenue he might—he might—but it only goes to show he's a nice boy and not bold like some. I'm thinking you'll have to help him, Norah, after all." Norah took the piled-up laundry basket in her strong young arms and carried it to the yard back of the house. The spring breeze rushed at her, almost more than a breeze now, it had grown so boisterous. "I'll help you," it boasted.

It dashed at the clothes Norah hung on the line and tossed them about violently. As she clipped a clothespin securely to a bit of muslin deeply edged with lace, her eyes caught the glint of buttons on a blue uniform walking straight up the avenue. He had just passed the Akerman house, where the old master kept a body loitering so long in conversation. If—if something light and pretty blew off this lawn in his direction he couldn't miss it and surely it would be his duty—to say nothing of his inclination, for he knew where Norah lived—to bring it straight back. Then she would say: "Oh, thank you, Mr.—Mr.—" And she would hesitate, just as if she hadn't heard his name at the corner grocery—a nice-sounding name, Robert Dale. And then he would say—and she would reply—Norah's hand stole up to the clothespin. "I'll help you, my girl!" shouted the spring breeze, grown into a fair-sized wind by this time. And it seized the frothy bit of lace and muslin and sent it flying down the avenue, following gustily to make sure it didn't turn back, blessings on it!

Just then Miss Brockingall put a frowning face at her bedroom window. "Norah!" she cried sharply. "Don't waste your time looking down the avenue. There is plenty of work waiting for you in the house. Where's my Honiton handkerchief? It slipped into the laundry bag by mistake."

"Faith, has it a name?" asked Norah, turning quickly to her mistress, for the next minute his heavy, measured footsteps would be sounding on the sidewalk, and she must show a proper degree of surprise.

"That's the name of the lace on it," snapped Miss Brockingall. "I set great store by that handkerchief. Come into the house at once."

Norah ran in, meeting her mistress on the back porch.

"Why isn't that handkerchief on the line?" asked Miss Brockingall.

Norah stood first on one small foot, then on the other. What could be keeping him? Surely the handkerchief couldn't have missed him, blowing as it must, straight in his way.

"Why don't you answer, Norah?" asked Miss Brockingall impatiently. "And what are you looking so queer about?" For a sudden, sickening thought had come to Norah. He might have been stopped at one of the other houses and the handkerchief might have been picked up by a passer-by while his back was turned. A pretty fix, and how was she to get out of it! She looked despairingly at the awning flapping in the gusty air. "Threatening clouds were lowing across the sky and she shivered. Shure, something had gone wrong!

"It blew away," she confessed in a very small voice.

"Blew away! A likely story. Do you realize that the handkerchief is valuable?"

"You can keep the money out of my wages." The lilt was gone from Norah's voice, for this was a serious matter. She had undertaken to help her mother pay a hospital bill and every penny counted.

"I don't know about that," snapped Miss Brockingall. "This looks suspicious to me."

Flames burnt up the tears in Norah's eyes at that. Her voice was loud as it rolled over her quick Irish tongue.

"What are you meanin'? Shure your handkerchief is down the avenue, and there I'll be findin' it in a minute."

But Miss Brockingall was at the veranda door before her. "You don't stir a foot till I've made up my mind what to do about the matter."

This certainly was a fix. If somebody had taken the handkerchief how could she ever clear herself? Norah's eyes searched the yard and roamed hopelessly to the sky. The gray clouds were scampering away, and with them went much of the gustiness, leaving merely the spring breeze in a merry mood. And if, at that very minute a pair of big feet encased in shining shoes didn't come tramp, tramping up the asphalted walk that led to the back porch! They halted now and then as their owner, a large young man whose buttons glinted on his blue uniform, searched diligently among the flowered borders by the house. Suddenly he stood up and saluted, a small white object fluttering from his big hand.

"I heard your voice," he said in a deep voice that went well with his massive build. "Might this handkerchief be the property of either of you ladies?"

He addressed Miss Brockingall, but the smile was for Norah, she knew, and she smiled back at him radiantly. "Now perhaps you'll be believing me," she said to her mistress, and without more ado followed Robert into the back yard.

"How did it happen you came across the handkerchief, Mr.—Mr—?" she queried, carefully smoothing out a crease in her dress so as not to meet his eyes.

"My name is Robert Dale," he said, "and it's glad I am to meet you at last!"

"You knew the handkerchief belonged here?"

"No," he answered. "I must have been daydreaming, for surely it blew down the avenue. Just as I had passed the Akerman house old Mr. Akerman called me back and we had some talk together. When I left him, if I didn't see this handkerchief caught in the shrubs!" He hesitated, reddened and leaned toward Norah, looking up at him artlessly. "I've been wanting to know you, Miss Norah—oh, yes, I've learned your name! I might have got to meet you at the grocery store, but a fellow feels awkward with folks gawking around. Today"—he straightened, a smile of triumph on his face—"today that handkerchief seemed to say, 'Bob, here's your chance!' I decided I'd inquire if it belonged here, just to get acquainted with you. Then the wind blew right handy and I took the handkerchief from my pocket and—"

He beamed down on her, obviously proud of his stratagem. The budding flowers and grasses seemed to nod in sympathy. The only clouds in the sky now were baby white ones with which the spring breeze, mild again and balmy, was having a glorious game.

"And I—" began Norah, smiling gleefully in anticipation of his surprise when he heard that she, too, had wanted to meet him. She stopped short because the spring breeze had blown a strang of hair across her mouth.

"Whist! You foolish girl!" it admonished. "Don't you know that a man likes to do his own courting?"

Norah looked up at Robert, her blue eyes deep with mystery.

"And I," she finished, "think it's the wonder you are for ideas, Robert Dale!"

Life of Diesel Engine

The bureau of engineering, Department of the Navy, says that the life of a Diesel engine, except for the minor wearing parts, all of which are made renewable in modern quality built engines, is practically indefinite. Talking Barber Bores Customer to Violence

Chicago.—Sam Pardo, 2065 Kendall street, walked into the barber shop of Jim Arvio at 1257 South State street, sat in Arvio's chair and asked curtly for a haircut and shave. Arvio started to work.

"Well, it's fine weather we're having for this time of year, isn't it?" said Arvio as he snipped away.

Pardo made no answer. But Arvio ignored that.

"You know," the barber went on, "there was a feller come in here the other day and—" The story went on and on through the entire haircut and shave.

Then as the barber lifted him back into a sitting position Pardo leaped from the chair, seized an iron bar that lay on the floor and struck the barber over the head, knocking him unconscious.

"I did it because he talked too much," Prado said to the police.

DEATH ENDS TROTH OF FORTY YEARS

Suitor Leaves Large Fortune to His Fiancee.

Philadelphia.—In recognition of an engagement that remained unbroken for nearly forty years, Miss Bernice McNulty has been left the bulk of the $250,000 estate of William G. Gibson, wealthy Pittsburgh bachelor and coal operator.

"There is nothing unusual about it," said Adeline McNulty, sister of the legatee, with whom she lives together with another sister, Genevieve. "My sister and Mr. Gibson had been fast friends for 40 years. An early engagement was never broken, the two agreeing never to marry, yet a beautiful friendship remained."

The three sisters share a modest brick dwelling, owned for more than 30 years by the legatee, as a home in this city. It has a store front occupied by a chain grocery store. Miss Bernice McNulty is a woman in middle age with a fair complexion and dark brown hair.

"She is too broken by Mr. Gibson's death to talk about it," said her sister, "but I am sure the inheritance will not change in the least her mode of living. My sister always has been a woman of moderate tastes, attached to simple things and no doubt her habits of a lifetime cannot be changed, nor will she have any desire to change them.

"Mr. Gibson was a friend of the family for years. My sister met him 40 years ago while visiting relatives in Pittsburgh and afterward he became a friend of the entire family. The inheritance did not come as a surprise to her. She has known for some time she was going to receive the money."

Long Absent Cat Back Home by Parcel Post

North Andover, Mass.—Teddy, an ancient tomcat, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Murphy of Osgood street, North Andover, has returned home after an absence of six months. He came in style—via parcel post, special delivery—from Biddeford Pool, Maine, where he disappeared from the Murphy summer home early in July.

Where he's been all this time nobody knows except Teddy, and he can't tell. When questioned by his mistress after the postman delivered him, he just blinked his eyes and licked his chops. He is sleek, fat and healthy looking as ever.

He had been the family pet eight years, and when he failed to turn up one night everybody in the house wept many tears, annoyed the police for a week or two and finally gave him up as lost. He was not forgotten, however, and when news of his being found reached the Murphy home here there was great rejoicing.

A letter came from the postmistress at Biddeford Pool saying Teddy had turned up and was at the post office. "What'll we do?" she asked, and Mrs. Murphy replied to ship him along by mail, special delivery.

Eyes Covered, 2 Duel in Dark; Both Killed

Vilna.—Their eyes tightly bandaged, two of the most dashing young men of Vilna locked themselves in a dark room and fired 30 shots at each other with automatic pistols until neighbors found them dying.

Lieutenant Pociechin and the young son of the famous Senator Ciesanowski quarreled over the merits of Marshal Josef Pilsudski and decided to settle the question in the most cruel manner of the annals of the dueling art of Poland.

Both died.

Stripped Him

Baltimore, Md.—An overcoat and a pair of socks were all that remained to James Boley, colored, in the police court after four fellow waiters on a bay boat finished claiming portions of apparel stolen from them.

Loyal Wife

New York.—Anthony Fratus, taxi driver, was in court for a traffic violation. Up spoke his wife, Virginia: "We have no money, but I'll go to jail for him." Then Magistrate Glatzmeyer: "Sentence suspended."

VAST REGION IN TEXAS STILL LACKS RAILWAYS

Area of About 50,000 Square Miles as Yet Unpenetrated by the Iron Horse.

Kerrville, Texas.—Although once-wild regions of America now are bound under a network of railroads, a vast domain of 50,000 square miles in Texas is still as free from iron rails as when it was first traversed by early Spanish explorers. And this in spite of the fact that Texas led the nation in railroad building in 1927.

Into the railroadless region of Texas could be crammed the states of Maryland, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Connecticut, Delaware and Rhode Island. The territory, spreading west from Kerrville to Alpine, embraces a fifth of the area of Texas.

Yet the sparsely settled region is not unproductive, it is known as the leading wool and mohair-producing territory of the world. Its mineral resources have been pronounced rich by government authorities, who name potash as one of the chief deposits.

Discovery of oil in the Pecos and San Angelo regions has resulted in the laying of pipelines across this hill country to inland shipping points and to ports on the Gulf of Mexico.

Railroads penetrate no farther than to San Angelo, Alpine, Del Rio, Kerrville, Llano and Menard. In the thinly settled interior, inhabitants without benefit of railway travel rely upon motor car and radio to relieve the monotony of their isolation.

Fishing Trawler Solves Fate of Missing Vessel

Halifax.—That she had become entangled in heavy wreckage which, when hauled to the surface, proved to be the last of the ill-fated Gloucester Fisherman Columbia, lost with all hands in the disastrous gale of last August, was the tale brought to this port by the captain and crew of the National Fish company trawler Venosta. The wreckage was encountered in latitude 43.24 north, longitude 61.12 west, or about 115 miles south-southeast of Halifax. The Venosta was engaged in trawling at the time.

While no name was apparent on the resurrected schooner, Captain Myhre of the Venosta and other members of the crew were positive that it was the wrecked Columbia. Captain Myhre was familiar with the appearance of the vessel, and the flood lights of the Venosta permitted a particularly good view.

After the gear of the trawler had become entangled in the wreckage, engines and winches were brought into use in an effort to bring the heavy mass to the surface, with the result that the masts and entire length of a fishing schooner arose from the swirling, whitened water.

Stone Age Principle Survives in New Saw

Washington.—A modern refinement of a Stone Age method of fashioning rock has come into use in the United States this year as the result of an experiment conducted under the supervision of the bureau of mines.

The device, known as a wire saw, proved its utility in Pennsylvania slate quarries by cutting large masses of the rock without the necessity of drilling, blasting and cutting, which by old methods have resulted in considerable waste.

Dr. Oliver Bowles, one of the bureau's experts, arranged for the experiments in co-operation with quarrymen after government engineers had studied operation of the wire saw in Belgium. The saw is merely a long steel cable, drawn at high speed across a rock surface and fed continuously with wet sand. The sand acts as an abrasive and enables the cable to sink into the rock at a rate of about two inches an hour. Operation cost, the bureau asserts, is half that of methods now generally in use, the speed of cutting is much greater, and the waste of material is much less.

Notwithstanding the thoroughly modern aspects of the machine, the bureau engineers find its efficiency depending upon the same phenomenon which prehistoric man utilized to make his arrow heads and tools of stone—the effect of abrasion or grinding.

Sea Lion Is Trainer for Endurance Swim

Berlin.—With a sea lion as a training partner and pacemaker, Otto Kemmerich, of Husum, German professional swimming champion, hopes to establish a new world endurance record of 48 hours about Easter.

Kemmerich, who ranks next to Ernest Virkoetter in Germany's list of long-distance swimmers, recently purchased a two-year-old sea lion from a Hamburg circus. The beast quickly became attached to his new master and learned to accompany him on practice swims. He now acts as a pacemaker, keeping a short distance ahead of his master.

Whether the sea lion will remain at his master's side throughout his world championship attempts is a question interesting not only swimming fans, but zoologists.

Kemmerich expects to make another attempt to swim the English channel with the sea lion as a possible strong-arm bodyguard. His previous attempt to swim the channel in 1926 failed when a large fish attacked him.

Lindbergh Makes Trip to Boston

Boston, March 1 (AP).—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh landed at the Boston airport at 10:53 a. m., after his flight from Schenectady.

Lindbergh made a perfect landing directly in front of the army headquarters building at the airport. Several hundred persons on the field were kept at a distance by police.

In the monoplane with the transatlantic flier were Major John Robertson and H. M. Bixby of St. Louis, and Uly S. Hill, manager of an Albany theatre.

Colonel Lindbergh motored to the local airport from Albany, where he spent the night. Tonight he will witness bestowal of a gold key upon his mother, Mrs. Evangeline Lodge Lindbergh, Detroit High School teacher, by the National Education Association.

CRATERS HIS WORK; RISK IN STREETS

Volcanic Expert Finds Traffic Greatest Danger.

Washington.—"Crossing city streets is the great risk I incur in my travels nowadays." This was the statement made here the other day by one of the world's greatest experts on volcanoes, Dr. Immanuel Friedlaender, director and founder of the Volcanological Institute at Naples. In the course of his wanderings, Doctor Friedlaender was once captured by Mexican bandits, and has had many experiences with live volcanoes, but he refuses to admit that the career he has adopted is any more dangerous than other professions. He is visiting America in order to interest American scientific men in the study of volcanology.

Born in Germany, Doctor Friedlaender acquired ample means in the business world and was able to divert a large part of his time and attention to scientific pursuits. In 1913 he founded and endowed in Naples the Volcanological Institute, and at the same time he launched what was then the only volcanological journal in existence. The World war swept away a considerable part of his fortune and also seriously curtailed the resources of the institute, but its work is still going on under Doctor Friedlaender's direction.

Deplores Short-Sightedness.

Asked about the economic value of volcano research, Doctor Friedlaender emphasized the fact that it is a short-sighted policy to encourage only those scientific investigations that promise to be of immediate utility. At the same time he pointed out how often it has happened that research in pure science, undertaken with no thought of practical applications, has contributed immensely to the material prosperity of mankind. When Galvani experimented with frogs' legs, no financially profitable outcome was to be anticipated—yet these experiments became one of the cornerstones of the great electrical industry of today. Roentgen did not dream of the many uses that would be made of the X-rays at the time he discovered them, nor did Hertz foresee the wonders of wireless telegraphy, based on his discovery of electromagnetic waves.

"As for volcanology," said Doctor Friedlaender, "there are at present very few specialists connected with this subject, and only a meager number of research institutions and observatories. The financial resources at the command of these establishments are ridiculously small, compared with the millions spent on astronomy. Surely the physics of the globe on which we live ought to be studied as thoroughly as the phenomena of distant stars!

"A more intimate knowledge of volcanism would lessen materially the danger to life and property in volcanic regions, including such parts of the American domain as California, the Hawaiian islands, Alaska and the Philippines. Explorations of volcanic areas are likely to lead to the profitable exploitation of volcanic products, useful in agriculture and other industries, including potash, silicates, sulphur, acids, etc.

Useful for Power.

"The huge reservoir of volcanic energy represented by the heat of rocks and gases could undoubtedly be tapped in many places and used for power production. Up to the present time the only successful undertaking in this line has been at Lardarello Italy, where thousands of kilowatts are produced from volcanic steam and used for power and lighting in the city of Florence. I believe that in time to come the greatest of all sources of power will be found in the subterranean storehouses of volcanic regions, where the internal heat of the earth can be reached at a relatively shallow level.

"The limited supplies of coal and oil in the earth will be exhausted in the comparatively near future. The water power available in rivers is already to a large extent taken up. Water power from the tides will probably prove costly to utilize, and the same is likely to be true of any method now in sight for using direct solar energy. In both cases the receiving apparatus must occupy very large surfaces and cannot work economically. On the other hand, no insurmountable obstacles seem to exist to tapping the earth's internal heat on a vast scale, and volcanology is paving the way to this accomplishment."

Isolate Drunkards

In northern Russia chronic drunkards are given the same treatment as persons suffering from smallpox or any other pestilence. They are confined as a menace to the health and life of the community.

BRICKLEY, FORMER HARVARD ATHLETE, IS FOUND GUILTY

Boston, March 1 (AP).—Charles E. Brickley, former Harvard football captain, today was found guilty of conducting a bucketshop and of larceny from two clients by a jury in Suffolk superior court. Sentence was set for March 12.

The jury received the case yesterday afternoon after a two weeks' trial. The verdict was reached this morning at 2:15. It was sealed and presented to Judge Patrick M. Keating when court opened.

Brickley was tried on indictments charging him with the larceny of 22 shares of Gillette Safety Razor Company stock and $2,195 in cash from Patrick Callahan of Boston, and with the theft of a smaller sum from Mrs. Georgia Boynton of Marlboro.

GREAT DIFFICULTY IN GETTING CONVICTIONS

Ottawa, March 1 (AP).—Commissioner Starnes of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police has found that getting his man and getting him convicted are two different persons.

"It is absolutely useless to proceed against a smuggler by way of indictment in Halifax," he reported to the House of Commons. "I regret to be obliged to report that these indictments largely against liquor smugglers," failed. The juries, in spite of convincing evidence, able presentation and strong charges from the bench, persisted in returning verdicts of acquittal.

SISTERHOOD MASQUERADE MOST SUCCESSFUL EVENT.

The fourth annual masquerade ball held by the Sisterhood of Temple Emanuel at the downtown Jewish Community Center Hall Wednesday night, was a success. It proved to be one of the most profitable events ever sponsored by the Sisterhood and all who attended had a most enjoyable time. Many compliments have been received by the ladies under whose auspices the masquerade was held and they wish to thank all who cooperated to make it the great social and financial success it proved to be.

Prizes were awarded for the most attractive and the most comical costumes. As there were plenty of both which commanded the attention of the judges, it was difficult to award the prizes. Music was furnished by Tony Turck's Romance of Rhythm Orchestra.

Among the patrons were Mr. and Mrs. L. Ferentz, whose names were omitted from the list published in The Freeman recently.

ONLY ONE DOG WAS CAUGHT WEDNESDAY

The official dog catchers of the city were only able to capture one unmuzzled dog found roaming the streets on Wednesday, and the animal was placed in the pound at Forsyth Park. This brings the total number of unmuzzled dogs caught up to 44.

CHEMUNG DAIRYMEN OBJECT TO CATTLE TEST.

Elmira, N. Y., March 1 (AP).—Members of the Chemung county unit of the New York State Farmers' Protective Association voted last night to continue resistance to the compulsory tuberculin cattle test prescribed in a state quarantine order, effective today.

The quarantine order is issued by the State Department of Agriculture and Markets, following efforts to compel the dairymen of the town of Chemung to submit to the cattle test on the grounds that 90 per cent of the cattle in the entire county has been so tested.

The dairymen of the town of Chemung insist that 90 per cent of the cattle are not tuberculin tested, and that conditions here do not warrant the compulsory order. In a statement issued today, they also declare that only four counties of the state have adopted a complete tuberculin test, and this voluntarily on the part of the farmers. In the other counties they claim the matter is optional.

It is also asserted that if the tests are in the interest of public health they do not "understand why the state sells the meat of the condemned cattle for public consumption without notice to the public that the meat is from condemned cattle."

The state department has been engaged for many months in an effort to compel the dairymen of the town of Chemung to submit to the test but have met with resistance, notwithstanding the support of the Chemung county farm bureau.

Financial and Commercial

New York, March 1 (AP).—Stock prices turned upward early this afternoon after an early period of irregularity. Short covering played an important part in the buying movement, particularly in such issues as American International, Radio and International Nickel, all of which recorded substantial gains. Net advances in the general list ran from one to four points, but these were interspersed with a sprinkling of losses almost as large.

Credit conditions were underscored with call loans apparently in plentiful supply at the renewal figure of 4½ per cent. The low yield basis of the New York city corporate stock financing was widely interpreted as evidence of underlying ease of money conditions.

The general market presented a rather confused appearance. Bear traders continued to pick out new weak spots while pools brought forward new favorites. Texas and Pacific Coal and Oil sank to a new low in reflection of the omission of the dividend. National Lead declined further in response to the relatively poor 1927 report, and Continental Baking A went into new low ground on growing fears for the safety of the dividend.

On the other hand, new peak prices for the year or longer were attained by Victor Talking Machine common and convertible preferred, Western Dairies A and B, Baruk Cigars and Baldwin Locomotive. Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck rallied on reports of an increase in February sales.

POULTRY FACTS

FEEDING FLOCK OF LAYING HENS

The New Hampshire station gives the following feeding recommendations for laying hens, formulated at the 1927 conference of representatives of New England agricultural colleges:

Mash formula: 200 pounds coarse yellow corn meal, 100 pounds wheat bran, 100 pounds middlings, preferably white; 100 pounds oat products (see paragraph 3); 25 pounds meat scraps, not less than 50 per cent protein; 25 pounds fish scraps, not less than 45 per cent protein; 25 pounds steamed bone meal; 25 pounds dried milk; 5 pounds common salt.

Grain formula: 200 pounds whole corn; 100 pounds wheat; 100 pounds oats.

1. That dry mash be kept before the birds constantly in hoppers or troughs that can be and are kept clean and free from litter, dirt and filth. That all hard grains be fed in similar hoppers or troughs. The amount will vary with the breed, the rate of production, the weather, and possibly other factors, but there is a growing tendency among poultrymen to feed grain more liberally.

2. Whole corn is recommended because there are certain vitamine losses in cracking, and furthermore the feeder is better able to check up on quality. This presupposes that chicks have been taught to eat whole corn on the range, or before being installed in the laying house.

3. Oats should be omitted from the scratch mixture when fed germinated. The term "oat products" in the mash formula includes oat flour, ground oatmeal or ground 40-42 oats. All are used pound for pound.

4. Cod liver oil is a valuable supplement that ought to be added to the ration during the winter months at the rate of one pint per 100 pounds of feed or nearly one quart per 100 hens per week or one-fourth pint per 100 hens per day. It should be fed the year around to hens kept in confinement.

Ganders Are Drawback in the Geese Business

Geese naturally mate in pairs. Sometimes you can force upon a gander more than one mate. Sometimes you cannot. I should say that the average you would have to keep would be two ganders to three and possibly four geese. That is one of the drawbacks of the geese business, says a writer in The Farmer. You have to keep too many unproductive males. The productive females do not lay a great number of eggs, perhaps 30 to 35, and unless some pains is taken in feeding them the eggs do not hatch very well.

If you have plenty of roughage, however, they can be rather cheaply fed. Short cuttings of alfalfa or clover hay may consist of one-third of the bulk of their feed. The other two thirds should consist of corn meal, wheat bran, wheat middlings. They should have a small amount of animal matter. This feed might be mixed with skim milk or buttermilk or add about 5 per cent of meat scraps or tankage to it. You should have fine sand, say about one pound in 100 pounds of soft feed. This soft feed should be fed quite wet. They might have a little whole corn at night, but not a great deal. Too much will make them so fat by spring that the geese eggs will not be fertile.

Changing Breed Doesn't Help Egg Production

Unfortunately for a great many people the idea prevails that the only way to get more eggs is to change the breed or variety of birds kept. Merely changing from one breed of birds to another is not going to make any improvement in results, unless some one has previously done some constructive breeding with the particular strain of birds selected. Some very creditable records have been made by individual cows in various breeds, and we also know that individual hens in different breeds of poultry have made some very high egg-production records.

Contagious Roup

Contagious roup is a very easy disease to recognize, starting usually like simple cold, with a thin, watery discharge from the nose and eyes. This secretion has a peculiar, offensive odor. Inflammation sets into the nasal passages, eyes and spaces just below the eyeballs. Birds often cough and sneeze and breathing becomes noisy. If nasal passages become blocked the birds breathe through their mouths. The birds soon lose their appetite and become depressed.

Prevent Toe Picking

When boxes of day-old chicks arrive do not open them and allow the chicks to see each other very long. They will be hungry and with no feed in the box they may quickly form the toe-picking habit. This seldom happens when the chicks are placed in the brooder house where the litter and the feed hopper keeps them busy. Idleness is the foundation of bad habits in poultry of all ages. The busy hen on the range seldom eats eggs or pulls feathers from her flock mates.

McLarnin Files Challenge.

New York, Mar. 1 (AP).—Jimmy McLarnin, sensational Los Angeles lightweight, today filed a challenge with the State Athletic Commission for a title match with Sammy Mandell, king of the division. McLarnin accompanied his challenge with a check for $2,500.

PORT EWEN

The topic at the mid-week services in the Port Ewen Reformed Church this evening at 7:30 will be "Christmanity Up-to date."

Chinese Show Little Regard for Shrines

Public religion appears to be in a more healthy condition in Japan than in China. Japanese temples are far better kept up than are Chinese temples. One sees many splendid places of Shinto worship. Apparently Shintoism is closely connected with worship of the emperor. A magnificent Shinto shrine has recently been constructed on a hilltop overlooking Seoul, the capital of what used to be called Korea, but is now known as Chosen.

The Japanese on entering a temple inclosure are respectful and seem to be in a worshipful mood. Their shoes are left outside and they walk either in their stocking feet or in soft sandals provided by the temple authorities.

In China, on the other hand, the temples are usually in bad repair. Frequently they are occupied by soldiers. In a Buddhist temple I saw one of the celebrated shrines railed off as a canteen where the soldiers bought their cigarettes and sweetmeats. The sacred image itself was partly concealed by merchandise.

No one thinks of taking off his shoes in a Chinese temple. One sees few Chinese worshiping. Apparently the principle religion is ancestor worship, and that takes place behind the scenes in the home, where the family altar represents the place for the highest type of aspiration. There is a sanctity about home life in China that one does not find elsewhere.—Senator Hiram Bingham, in World's Work.

Great French Writer Had Odd Superstition

Emile Zola, the French writer, had a mania for counting, Pierre Van Paassen relates, in the New York Evening World. He was extremely restless and his nerves completely dominated him, so he could not have a minute without some mental occupation. Even when he was strolling about the streets his nerves forced him to count his steps and to count everything he saw, the trees he passed, the dogs he encountered on a walk, the number of carriages that passed him, the windows in the house opposite his own, the street lamps, the number of men and the number of women.

Curiously enough, Zola, who is generally taken as one of the most enlightened spirits of his time, noted down all these figures, divided them, multiplied them and added them to discover if by chance they would reveal some number that he considered lucky.

Zola was as happy as a child if he discovered a figure that he thought would bring him luck, and after a morning's stroll over the Paris boulevards set to work with gusto. The other way around, if his calculations did not produce a lucky number, he grew morose and mournful and could not write a line the rest of the day.

Daddy on Fire

Little Mildred ran into the house the other day and screamed: "Oh, mother, I just saw daddy on fire!"

"On fire!" the startled mother cried, and Mildred vigorously nodded her head.

After a maternal cross-examination it turned out that Mildred had passed the barber shop and saw a barber applying matches to her father's hair. She had run all the way home to tell mother and save daddy's life.

When father came home a few minutes later he was surprised at the affectionate greeting of his little daughter, who was delighted to see that he had escaped from the fire fiend alive.—Philadelphia Record.

Starts Stage War

Here's Alden Gay, American actress, who was barred from appearing on the English stage by the British Ministry of Labor because they believed an English player could fill the role. Miss Gay was scheduled to play in the London production of "Married Bachelors." The American Actors' Equity Association is considering taking "reprisals" against English visitors to the Broadway stage.

ANCIENT BABYLONIA WILL BE SURVEYED FROM AIRPLANES

Special Type Planes and Cameras Necessary Because of Dangerous Nature of Flying.

London.—Ancient Babylonia has come under the surveyor's rod, and is to be measured from the air next April, according to the contract just made between the Iraq government and a British aircraft firm.

Under the terms of the contract, 1,000 square miles of the country along the Tigris river to the north and south of romantic Bagdad are to be surveyed and photographed preparatory to charting maps of the district, which includes Opis, the ancient Babylonian city which was sacked by Cyprus 2,500 years ago.

Due to the dangerous nature of the flying, most of which will be done over areas where there are no accommodations for landing, the keenest interest has been manifested in the project. Further interest has been aroused by the fact that special type planes and cameras will be used. Pilot and observer will be so placed in the plane as to command an unobstructed view of the ground and their plane will be so powerful as to permit their returning to the aerodrome on one engine if necessary.

Meanwhile antiquarians are aroused by the plans since it is considered likely that such methods of exploration will open the way to the discovery of ancient cities and ruins that have hitherto been inaccessible.

Aerial photographs have already been responsible for considerable scientific discovery and it has been suggested that the way has now been opened to a further study of the famous terraced villages of central Africa.

Since the company which has been commissioned to make the survey of Babylonia has also been engaged to conduct similar ventures in Rhodesia and central Africa, the results of their initial attempt are being watched with the greatest interest.

Fuel Saving Method Found by Engineer

Fayetteville, Ark.—A simple method by which American coal consumers may reduce their annual fuel bill 19 per cent has been discovered by L. C. Price, research engineer of the University of Arkansas, he announces.

Extensive tests reveal, he says, that the savings may be made by cutting down the grate surface of a coal burner in mild weather. The actual indicated savings run from 13 per cent in Chicago to more than 35 per cent in New Orleans.

In the course of his investigations the engineer found that in larger cities the average season fuel cost for homes having 1,150 square feet of steam radiation were as follows:

New York, $574 for oil and $418 for coal; Washington, $519 for oil and $375 for coal; New Orleans, $207 for oil and $133 for coal; Chicago, $642 for oil and $470 for coal; Atlanta, $873 for oil and $265 for coal.

Radio Directs Nine Aeros Maneuvering in Storm

Mitchel Field, N. Y.—Nine observation planes, sweeping across the field in battle formation, whirled and spun in a series of intricate maneuvers, directed by radio from the ground. It was the first time radio communication has been used to direct the movements of a full observation group.

Capt. Walter Bender, operations officer at the field, issued orders through a microphone on the ground to Lieut. Roland Brin, commander of the flying squadron. Brin transmitted the order by signal to other planes of the group and the ships pivoted and formed new lines as the radio orders were relayed.

The drill was conducted while the planes were flying at 150 miles an hour, in the face of high winds and heavy snow. At times the ships were obscured by low clouds. The success of the experiment, Captain Bender said, indicated that in future it will be possible to direct an observation flight entirely by radio.

Red and Blue Plush Is Latest for Dinner Wear

Paris—Dinner clothes for men in red and blue plush are making an appearance around some of the swankest boards in the capital. At half a dozen smart dinners recently some of the best dressed men in international society have appeared with so-called tuxedos, the jackets of which are tailored in fine velvet stuffs in rather quiet but distinctly colored shades. Nothing vivid is considered good form. Rich wine reds and deep blues are good, however. Hostesses are said to be pleased with the innovation because their male guests thus garbed count for something in the decorative scheme. Both against the white napery of the dinner table and in the salon afterward for coffee the new velvet jackets give a pleasant effect, especially now when women's gowns are generally so pale in hue and rather scanty.

Eagles Fight to Death

Fear Outbreak in Mine Union War

Pittston, Pa., Mar. 1 (AP)—While the police were making an intensive drive to run down the three men held responsible for the latest slaying in Pittston's bloody mine union war, citizens of the community today gravely predicted there would be another outbreak in the industrial warfare.

There appeared to be a general acceptance of the likelihood that reprisals would be forthcoming for the shooting to death Tuesday of Alex Campbell, clerk weighman at number six colliery of the Pennsylvania Coal Company, and Peter Reale, recording secretary of local Union No. 1767, United Mine Workers of America. Hired gunmen, imported by their enemies, were believed by police to have fired the barrage of shots that killed the two men.

So menacing has the situation become that Mayor William D. Gilbert has appealed to John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers, to come to Pittston and help restore peace and order.

On Sunday, March 4, the ceremony will start at Kaplan's at 1:30 p. m. A march with music will follow down to Accord and down to the Jewish Community Center, which it will reach at about 3:30. The rites will be continued at that place. These will include a speech by Rabbi Greenblot of Ellenville and other good speakers. There will be a sweet table all afternoon.

Quaint Old Munster

Old German Houses.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

MUNSTER, with its winding streets, its ancient houses, gabled, arcaded, and mottoed, is one of Germany's most alluring towns for the traveler who finds a joy in quiet quaintness. It is especially appealing in the summer when its outdoor beauty may be enjoyed to the full.

The Prinzipal Markt of the city is not, as its name suggests, a great open square, but an arcaded street, one link in a chain of curving streets and markets, which incloses the cathedral, the university, and other ancient buildings.

To the right one sees the tall, delicate tower of the Lamberti Kirche thrust forward where the Roggenmarkt turns out of sight behind the tall gables. To the left, beyond the jutting balcony of the ancient weighhouse, the Rotenburg curves from view—a jumble of steep gray gables and scarlet roofs. One cannot decide which way lies the lovelier picture.

The city is very quiet on Sundays. A few early churchgoers hurry under cover of the arcades to the cathedral or to St. Lambert's. A little girl trips by, in her arms a loaf of bread almost as long as herself.

In the middle of the open space before the church a dog sits, yawning dismally. Is this all the "liveliness of the market-place"? Munster sleeps late on Sundays.

Across the way are some charming houses, four or five stories tall, gray and gabled; some frankly old, other manifestly "restored." The ground floor is a shop, but the upper stories of the house extend above the pavement, resting upon pillars and arches; the effect is very pleasing to the eye, and in stormy weather the arcade is, for foot-farers, a great comfort.

All German towns can boast charming window gardens but few are so lovely, so rich in bloom, as those of Munster.

Lovely Window Gardens.

Fancy a high, narrow facade of smooth, cool gray stucco dripping with purple blossoms from attic window to arched ground floor. The vine is apparently our large-flowered purple clematis. Every window is massed with it, the long tendrils swinging and swaying in the light wind, the greenery almost hidden by the mass of bloom. Beside it a gayer building, gleaming with new paint and "restorations," finds its fresh colors rivaled by the pink blossoms in its window gardens, and beyond it a structure of dark gray stone makes a delightful background for a wealth of scarlet flowers.

And here and there behind each flowery screen one catches a glimpse of moving hands, of shining watering-cans, and sharp pruning-shears, sometimes of a friendly face. Usually the face is masculine; the master cultivates the flowers while the mistress is busy in the kitchen. Sunday dinner is too important to be left in a maid's incompetent hands.

An hour after church service the market is as quiet as in the early morning. Munster then dines. After ward it naps, then drinks coffee, after which it is ready for church and amusement once more. But the traveler can well utilize this quiet period in the sunshine for sightseeing.

For a while the streets are deserted, but later smiling family groups begin to appear—father, mother and a troup of chubby children; young couples arm-in-arm, newly engaged or married (one knows whether it is "engaged" or "married" by observing if the girl leans upon the man's right or left arm)—going to the parents for the sociable coffee-drinking, an every-day function, which upon Sunday receives a pleasantly leisurely holiday flavor and offers convenient opportunity for offering light refreshment to one's family and friends.

St. Lambertus' Tower.

In the Prinzipal Markt one may notice now and then some passer stop and gaze intently at St. Lambertus' tall tower. It is undeniably lovely, graceful, altogether satisfactory, as it soars upward from the market, but these people who look longest do not look like students of picturesque architecture.

Finally one discovers the objects their eyes have been seeking—three long iron cages swinging just above the clock face on the tower. They recall Munster's most harrowing days, those when she went mad with frenzied religious zeal and followed blindly the vicious teachings of John of Leyden.

It is unjust to saddle upon a sect the evils practiced by its leaders, but all Anabaptists suffered in reputation and Munster in stern reality by reason of the vicious excesses there indulged in by this John of Leyden and his associates. The wild orgy ended with John's overthrow. He and his chief intimates, Knipperdollinck and Krechting, died by tortures and their bodies were exposed in these iron cages upon the stump of St. Lambert's old tower, for the present graceful structure has scarcely been finished a generation.

In the brief period of John of Leyden's rule, all of Munster's church towers were demolished by his order, so it is said; only St. Lambert's was stout and strong and could not be entirely destroyed. Munster has been spoken of as the "city without a tower," and that may well have been the case in the years directly after this religious upheaval, but not today; Munster boasts many graceful towers and spires.

Beside St. Lambertus is a charming little fountain, a children's fountain, its basin carved with quaint nursery rhymes and a ring of chubby marble children, not cherubs, nor fairies, but lovable every-day children, frolicking around the splashing water. Usually it is encircled by living children as well, scrambling and clambering up the basin's sides, dabbling eager hands in the pool, or gazing open-mouthed at their marble representations. The Ludgerus fountain by the cathedral is more celebrated, but this one in the Lambertus Platz is more charming.

Churches and Parks.

Munster has several beautiful churches besides the Dom, the largest and finest church in Westphalia, notably Ludgeri-Kirche, older yet than the cathedral in part, and the beautiful Gothic Ueberwasser-Kirche, more rythmically the Church of Our Lady. The cathedral (St. Paul) was built in the Thirteenth century upon the site of an earlier church, traces of which may still be found by antiquaries; but the later additions made in the Sixteenth century are far more apparent. From some corners of the great tree-shaded Domplatz the edifice is very beautiful, from others unimpressive.

Munster's old walls and gates are all gone. One or two plain old towers alone remain of all her stout fortifications. Her "rampart-promenade," a ring of small parks crossed at intervals by well-paved streets, takes the place of walls and moat, and from it American cities could well learn the art of landscape gardening within narrow limits.

Nowhere are these parks of great width, yet frequently they give the impression of distance, and beautiful breathing places they make for a population which has long since outgrown the town's ancient limits. Water fowl find homes in the rippling pools that adorn them, ducks and swans so entirely at home and unafraid that, after an inquiring glance up and down a street, they do not hesitate to cross it upon their way from pool to pool.

Flowers and shrubbery, smooth green turf, and thick-foliaged trees line the quiet walks; sweethearts and little romping children; old people, slow and patient of step; parents with growing families; soldiers, students, bold and assertive; coquettish nursery maids out for an airing; school girls, blushing and giggling—all to be met with on a holiday afternoon.

Adjoining the ring of promenades is a stately schloss, once the residence of Munster's proud prince bishops, but now belonging to the state, and beyond the promenades are Munster's most charming residences, each with its garden, large or small, but always flower-filled and always with a tiny veranda, or arbor.

"THE CRYSTAL CUP" AT BROADWAY THEATRE

What she regards as the most unusual characterization of her entire screen career is portrayed by Dorothy Mackaill in "The Crystal Cup," the First National picture now playing at the Broadway Theatre. Her character is that of a girl who detests men and to rid herself of their attentions makes herself as masculine as possible in dress and mannerisms.
